Community Chest Acts To Set Up Family Help Unit

ARMS UNITY UP TO CONGRESS

HOUT APPOINTS COMMITTEE TO STUDY PROJECT

Agency Votes to Change Its Name, Reelects Most of Its Officers at Meet.

Mansfield's Community Fund organization last night took steps to set up a family welfare agency to offer help to broken families, changed the name of the organization to Community Chest, and reelected its president, Fred B. Hout, and most of its other officers.

The action was taken at the agency's annual meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Approximately 60 persons, most of them trustees of the organization, attended.

Hout, who is beginning his second year as president, was authorized to name a committee to study the feasibility of a family welfare program as proposed by Jane Williams, executive secretary of the Community Chest, in her annual report to members.

Mrs. Williams said frequent requests came to her office from wives and husbands in broken homes for help which the organization can't offer under its present program.

Cites Need For Agency.

She said her experience with broken homes showed a growing need for a service to supplement the work of the other Mansfield agencies which now only touch on the problem.

Floyd Dent, Boy Scout executive, proposed that the Community Chest support the move to establish a domestic relations court in Richland county, pointing out that Mansfield is large enough to require another court devoted exclusively to domestic problems. The extra court would take some of the burden off the common pleas and probate courts, it was pointed out.

Hout said the proposals would be taken up today with Lyman Ford, who is in charge of national welfare planning for Community Chests and Councils. Ford was in Mansfield today.

Name of the agency was changed to Community Chest to bring it in line with others throughout the nation and to make it possible to use national publicity material here.

Vote Amendments.

Other amendments enacted last night provide that a participating agency which wants to withdraw from the Chest must give 60 days' written notice to the Chest's executive committee, and the executive committee shall by the tenth month of each current fiscal year, require an itemized statement of each participating agency's operating financial requirements.

Officers returned to their posts last night, besides Hout, were: H. W. Gibbs, vice president, and Orlo L. Smith, treasurer. W. E. Slabaugh jr., who headed the Community Fund drive last fall, was chosen secretary to succeed John Welland.

Members of the executive committee chosen last night were Clarence L. Fike, George L. Draffan, H. H. Schettler, G. W. Stephens, and Desmond Walker.

THREE PERISH IN HOTEL FIRE

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—(INS)—Three persons perished and another was injured seriously today when fire swept the top-floor of the three-story Graystone rooming house and hotel in the central section of Watertown. Five others are listed as missing.

Police said there were about 25 roomers in the old building when the fire broke out at 1:25 a. m. (EST) but that most managed to escape. The fire, which wrecked the third floor, was not brought under control until 6 a. m.

The dead were identified tentatively as Sam Poole, of Harrisville, N. Y.; William Mullins and Eugene Godfrey, both of Watertown.

The injured man was identified as Joseph King. The hospital said he was in fair condition but was in an oxygen tent.

Arnall Forced To Quit Capitol By Talmadge

ATLANTA—(AP)—Herman Talmadge seized complete control of Georgia capitol today and forced Ellis Arnall to move to a downtown office building.

Arnall, who has been governor for the past four years and claims he is still the state's legal executive despite the state legislature's naming Talmadge, announced his intention to establish the Arnall capitol downtown after a brief encounter with Talmadge lieutenant at the state house.

The Talmadge lieutenant, State Rep. Jimmy Dykes, earlier had seized the desk in the capitol rotunda which Arnall occupied yesterday after being ejected from the executive chamber.

Arnall walked jauntily up the marble steps and entered the capitol door at 10:11 a. m.

He headed directly for the capitol rotunda where he occupied temporary offices yesterday.

Arnall strode up to Rep. Dykes and said "Jimmie, I'm governor."

Dykes interrupted to say "Ellis Arnall, you remind me of a hog. You got your head in the trough and you just can't stop."

Arnall asked "Have you taken my office?"

Dykes replied "I have. I'm refusing to let you sit here. You have no more right to be governor than I have."

Arnall retorted "We'll let's see."

Voices Stall

Then, turning to the press, and speaking into a radio microphone, Arnall said "To the people of Georgia—as governor of Georgia, I have been denied access to the state capitol building . . ."

Dykes shouted "That's a lie."

Arnall continued:

". . . today, denied access to my office in the rotunda of the capitol. In order not to discredit the people of Georgia and to create disturbance, I'm moving to 1407 Candler building (in downtown Atlanta) there to function as chief executive.

"I am sure the courts will uphold me as legal governor and not the forces bent on violence."

He was interrupted repeatedly by cheers from the surrounding crowd.

Arnall went directly to the office of Secretary of State Ben Fortson, jr., where he signed a document and before presenting it to Fortson announced:

"Gentlemen, this is merely another evidence of the fact that I have this day continued to function as governor of Georgia. I am leaving this document with the secretary of state as a written testimonial of that."

Its contents were not disclosed immediately.

'Impossible' Problem, Boals Says of Traffic

Mansfield police, attempting to solve downtown traffic problems, are wrestling with a impossible situation. Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals told the Mansfield Motor Truck association last night.

Invited to a meeting of the association to discuss truck deliveries to stores in the downtown area, Boals soon showed the truckers that their problems are only part of a larger evil.

Just Too Many Cars.

"As a city official I have to deal with the problem from the standpoint of all motorists. There are 13,000 autos registered within a 25-mile radius of Mansfield. We estimate that 4000 vehicles use downtown streets which were never designed for cars, trucks and buses," Boals said.

"The traffic problem is really a parking problem, in one sense. The only answer is to get the autos off the streets. We estimate that about 50 per cent of the downtown traffic during the rush hours is composed of vehicles simply looking for a place to park.

"I advocated downtown parking garages a number of years ago and I still think it's the answer. As long as the size and number of streets and parking places remain unchanged, the police can do only so much."

The traffic commissioner's statements were in reply to officials of the association who emphasized the problems of truck operations in the downtown section.

* * *

Operate 315 Trucks.

Thomas M. Dorsey, chairman of the association's traffic committee, pointed out that 14 of the city's 27 largest trucking companies operate 315 vehicles in and through the city each day.

"If we brought all those trucks up town at the same hour some day it would demonstrate pretty forcibly what the situation is, not only for us but for the whole city," Dorsey said.

Richard Keller, of the Pioneer Storage company, said that hauling rates are higher because of the delays in delivery.

"One trucking company in one month on just one hauling account spent 200 truck-hours in making deliveries in the downtown area. Delays in unloading and parking were such as to drag the income from that operation down from $3 per hour to 90 cents, which was not even enough to cover the driver's wages," Keller reported.

"Multiply that by the number of operations of all the trucks of all the companies and you can see where we, our customers and the public at large are suffering a great economic loss," he said.

* * *

Offer Suggestions.

Such recommendations as no parking in alleys, establishment of one-way traffic on main thoroughfares, creation of more streets, breaking of bottlenecks, and different timing of traffic lights were made by the truckers.

The meeting was held after a dinner was served at the Fairway club on U. S. Route 30-S. Besides Boals, Reese Mills, president, and John G. Routzon, secretary-manager, of the Chamber of Commerce; W. L. Faukner, president of the Retail Merchants association, and Shelby Police Chief Leroy Coffey attended. A safety movie, entitled "X Marks the Spot," was shown by representatives of C. E. Preslan and company, motor transportation insurance firm of Cleveland.

HOUSE STUDIES LUXURY TAXES

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—By an unanimous vote the house ways and means committee today approved legislation continuing indefinitely the wartime tax rates on liquor, jewelry, furs, and many other goods and services.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The house ways and means committee met in a closed session today to consider, and possibly approve, a bill to continue indefinitely the high wartime excise taxes on liquor, jewelry, furs and other luxury items.

Speedy action on the measure was forecast by the committee's Republican majority "unanimously" approving the continuation.

Thus, it appeared that the continuation, urged by President Truman, might well become the first measure to obtain approval by the Republican-controlled house.

The taxes are due to expire July 1. President Truman sought continuation of the taxes in order to provide additional revenue with which to make a payment on the national debt.

Republicans and Democrats in the house saw the move, however, as an effort on the part of the majority to provide greater revenue in order to carry through promises to reduce individual taxes by 20 per cent.

U. S. ARMY TROOPS IN KOREA ALERTED

SEOUL — (INS) — United States Army forces in southern Korea were alerted today in connection with mass demonstrations reportedly planned against the occupied nation's "trusteeship" status.

Usually reliable sources said the demonstrations were ordered by extreme rightist elements and scheduled to start tomorrow.

Some informants said, however, that the starting date for the demonstrations would be put off until early in March.

ORIGINAL PLAN OF BELT LINES OFTEN REVISED

Engineers Agree That Route Should Consider Growth of City.

(Editor's Note: This is the sixth in a series of articles on Mansfield's traffic and highway problems.)

* * *

By PHILIP GREENE

Since the original belt-line highway system around Mansfield was put on paper 20 years ago, a considerable number of adjustments to plans have occurred to some of the city's leading engineering minds, largely because of growth of the city.

Specifically, four engineers on the Chamber of Commerce highway and traffic committee have turned fresh attention to the belt-line proposal as a result of the state highway department's proposed $15,000,000 expressway and because of rapid expansion of the city.

Originally the belt-line was planned to circle Mansfield over Trimble and Finney roads to the west, Cook road to the south, Hesseldon road and Illinois avenue to the east, and Longview avenue (extended on both ends) on the north.

* * *

Four Men Agree.

Now there is general agreement among the four men, County Engineer Walter E. Rusk, City Engineer W. C. Statler, John Cunning, private consulting engineer, and Charles W. Conklin, private engineer and architect, that roads chosen for such a belt-line should be farther away from the city.

Greene

Conklin, chairman of the committee, thinks the 1926 boundaries are "probably best" but that subsequent growth of the city might dictate use of Home road on the west, Piper road to the north, Stewart road to the east, and Logan, Straub or Hanley roads to the south.

"There are lots of possibilities and all should consider the inevitable expansion of the city. I have no doubt that a belt-line system will eventually be constructed. The city and county should assume joint responsibility and hire

Get a Hobby To Save Life, Says Doctor

BOSTON—(INS)—"Get a hobby or die," is the advice today of Dr. Jay B. Nash.

The director of the department of physical education, New York university, told presidents of 45 Baptist schools and colleges:

"We have to learn to live amid confusion, amid the rush, the worry and the tenseness of modern life . . .

"We've got to learn to play golf, or to play bridge, or to go down into the cellar and work on a lathe, or to go out and play a game of tennis."

"I say, we've got to get a hobby or die."

COLUMBUS —(AP)— James R. Derry of Barnesville, O., was awarded the $150 Robert B. Stoltz scholarship last night as the outstanding dairy technology student at Ohio State university.

Experts On Trail Of Snail

COLLEGE PARK, Md.,—(AP)—The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service Laboratory here wants to know exactly what a snail's pace is.

In fact, the snail's every movement is being studied as a means to exterminating the creature, which drills holes in the shells of Chesapeake Bay oysters.

Said Dr. Paul S. Galtsoff, chief of the shellfish investigating section: "When we find out how far and how fast it travels and when it stops, we'll know better how to cope with it."

FIREMEN RAM WAY TO BLAZE

(Picture on Page 13)

A fire truck was put to novel use as a ramming machine early today as firemen fought for two hours a stubborn blaze at a building at 24-26 East Sixth street.

The fire, which broke out about 1 a. m. in the Holland poolroom on the second floor of the building occupied by three other firms, burned a large hole in the floor of the poolroom.

Jack Applan, owner of the building, estimated damage at about $2,000.

* * *

Handicapped by Smoke.

Firemen were handicapped by heavy smoke, and were forced to use a truck to ram in the doors leading to the Borden Milk company garage on the first floor to clear the air when gas masks donned by the firefighters proved useless.

Confronted by the dense smoke, firemen at first attempted to pull the doors off by tying heavy ropes to the doors and backing up the fire engine. When this failed, firemen used the fire truck to ram the doors. After the smoke cleared, the fire was extinguished.

* * *

Burns Through Ceiling.

The six-by-12 foot hole in the poolroom floor burned through the ceiling of the Borden garage. The heat cracked windows and damaged paint on two of the eight trucks stored in the garage.

Two fire companies fought the blaze for two hours and laid four fire lines before extinguishing it. Damage was confined to the burned-out portion of the floor, some damage to the roof, and water and fire damage to two trucks stored in the garage.

The first floor of the building is occupied by the Borden garage and the Applan Tire Retreading company. The second floor houses the Triumph Valve Manufacturing company and the poolroom.

Applan said he believed the fire started in the Borden section of the building.

IDEAL WEATHER TO STAY AWHILE

The mercury today dipped below freezing for the first time since Monday, but the weatherman said no severe cold was in sight before the middle of next week.

Rising temperatures with some cloudiness were predicted for tomorrow. The extended forecast into next Wednesday was for temperatures averaging five to 10 degrees above normal, with little precipitation.

6 KNOWN DEAD, 55 HURT AFTER TRAIN CRACKUP

Other Victims Still Under Cars, Report Officials at Scene of Wreck.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif.—(AP)—Six persons were known to be dead, many others were crushed beneath cars and an estimated 55 persons were being treated for injuries in the wreck of a Southern Pacific passenger train 12 miles northwest of here early today.

Sheriff's Deputy Jack Kiethley, the first officer to return from the scene, said an uncounted number of passengers were hurled through train windows and crushed beneath the weight of four coaches and a tourist sleeper which were derailed and overturned when the Owl, night train southbound from San Francisco to Los Angeles, hit a broken rail.

The sheriff's deputy reported that the wreckage was a ghastly scene and that legs and arms were torn from some of the victims.

"The halls are full of injured and we are working on them desperately," said an attendant at the Kern County hospital here. Names of the dead and injured were not yet available. One of the injured was a youngster whose leg was severed in the wreck.

Ambulance crews, sheriff's deputies and others worked feverishly to extricate the injured and rush them to hospitals.

* * *

Hits High Speed.

A Southern Pacific dispatcher said the train, Owl No. 58 which left San Francisco at 6:30 o'clock last night and was due in Los Angeles at 8:25 a. m. today, usually travelled at 60 miles an hour along the stretch where the wreck occurred.

Sergeant L. E. Pryor of the Bakersfield sheriff's office said six ambulances had been sent to the scene at Ledro, a small railway station near Minter Field, wartime training field for aviation cadets.

The engineer, H. P. Lawrence, and the conductor, George Cochrane of Los Angeles, were unhurt as the locomotive and three baggage cars behind it were not derailed. Seven passenger cars of the 15-car train remained upright.

Southern Pacific officials said the train carried approximately 200 passengers.

State Highway Patrolman Jack Bordeau said two soldiers on the train, Marvin Stansberry of Moulton, Iowa, and Orvis Humphrey of Kidder, Mo., rescued many persons from overturned cars by stamping out windows and lifting out the injured.

* * *

Coach Lands In Field.

Lester Ford, porter on one of the overturned coaches, said most of the injured were in one of the coaches which completely left its tracks and hurtled into a potato field.

"I heard a roaring and grinding as the car I was in started rolling up track in front of it," he added.

A reporter who visited the wreck said the rails "looked like spaghetti" where they had been rolled up, and shoes of passengers were strewn along the road bed.

AKRON—(INS)—Nearby Springfield township teachers seeking a salary increase were backed today in their demands by the Parents' Civic committee. The group voted last night to back a $25 monthly increase.

Military Men Favorable to Merger Plans

Program, If Approved, Will Provide Cabinet Secretary on National Defense, Truman Discloses.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—President Truman's plan for merger of the armed forces will reduce the present cabinet from 10 to nine members by combining the war and navy departments into a secretaryship for national defense.

The cabinet offices of secretary of war and navy will be abolished, if congress approves the merger plan.

This was disclosed today by the White House in a full dress conference participated in by the present chiefs of the army and navy. The conference was called to clarify the compromise merger plan announced last night.

It also developed that the heralded "unification" of the army and navy is in reality a reorganization plan which unifies and coordinates armed services command at the top level.

Under this plan the army and navy are to be maintained as separate and autonomous units together with a new and independent air force.

The plan calls for a new secretary for national defense who will have civilian status, just as do all other members of the president's cabinet. There will be a secretary of the army, secretary of the navy, and a new secretary of the air—the air force attaining separate and equal rank with land and sea forces.

* * *

Lack Cabinet Rank.

These three secretaries, the White House disclosed, will not have cabinet rank, but will be free to take their problems up directly with the president without recourse necessarily to the secretary of national defense.

Statements of war and navy department officials at the White House conference also disclosed that no immediate economies or budget savings in support of the armed forces can be expected.

This was in direct contradiction of earlier claims that "billions of dollars" would be saved by unification of the services.

The conference was attended by Secretary of War Patterson, Secretary of Navy Forrestal, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Admiral William D. Leahy, the president's chief of staff, Vice Admiral Sherman, and Maj. Gen. Lauris Norstad.

The chiefs of the armed forces each made brief statements approving the compromise plan.

AURIOL TALKS TO FRENCH REDS

PARIS—(INS)—France' political factions today began maneuvering for posts in the coalition government which is to take the place of the all-socialist Blum cabinet.

Blum and his fellow interim cabinet members submitted their resignations yesterday following the election of Socialist Vincent Auriol as first president of the fourth French republic.

Eight minutes after Auriol took up residence at the presidential Elysee palace this morning, Communist party leaders Maurice Thorez and Jacques Duclos presented themselves for an audience.

Auriol, empowered to consult concerning the formation of the new government and selection of the new French premier, conferred with the communist leaders for 35 minutes. Neither of the latter would comment upon their departure.

They were followed shortly after by Andre Colin and Robert Lecourt, representatives of the popular Republican movement, strongest rival of the Communist party in the last French elections.

The communists were seen as in a favorable position in the formation of the new government since they threw their strong support to Auriol in the presidential balloting and are the strongest party in the French legislature.

No Joke, College Wants Students

MARIETTA —(INS)— It's more than two months until April Fool's day, so apparently Marietta college officials were serious when they hung out the "students wanted" sign today.

Dr. W. Ray Irvine, director of admissions, said that 20 additional girls and 30 single men could be accommodated at the beginning of the second semester Feb. 3 because of increased housing accommodations.

SOLON PLEDGES WAR EXPOSES

Brewster Urges Senate To Continue Investigating Committee's Life.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Chairman Brewster (R., Me.) promised his senate colleagues today "sensational new exposes" if they vote added life for his special war-investigating committee.

As the chamber prepared for its third day of debate on the hotly disputed issue, Brewster told reporters his group already had accumulated "90 per cent of the material" that would make its previous disclosures look like "small potatoes."

And in addition to digging deeper into cases of suspected war profiteering, Brewster declared that if and when the extension was granted he planned to press the White House for:

1. All details on how the late President Roosevelt and his successor, President Truman, spent some $648,000,000 of secret funds granted them to carry on the war.

2. Disclosure of a "secret mobilization report" which Brewster said Mr. Truman sought when he was chairman of the same committee but "was refused" by President Roosevelt.

Brewster and other Republican leaders voiced confidence that they had more than enough votes to continue the war investigating group and also set up a new special small business committee.

* * *

Dems Opposed.

Democrats have been almost solidly against both special groups on the contention that the congressional reorganization act intended the reduced number of regular committees to take over the work of all special groups.

Even a cabinet member called, Chairman Brewster said, to suggest that his committee give its attention to the renegotiation of multi-billion dollar contracts.

"We want to look over the big fellows, the little fellows and many dummy corporations," Brewster said, adding:

"You can be sure that the things to come will make the Garsson and similar exposes seem unimportant."

His reference was to the months-long committee hearings last year into the multi-million dollar Garsson munitions combine, whose wartime activities since have been the subject of a federal grand jury investigation.

HUSBAND FACES MURDER CHARGE

ZANESVILLE—(INS)—First degree manslaughter charges were filed today against Daniel Haines, 27, of Zansville, in connection with the death of his wife, Myrtle, 24.

Prosecutor Clarke Barbour said "new developments late yesterday" prompted the charges filed by Zanesville Detective Chief Edgar Rider.

The woman's body was found in her bed Monday. Coroner S. S. Daw established no cause for death. He did state it was not caused by bruises allegedly incurred in a fight with her husband, Daniel Haines, two days earlier.

While a laboratory report was awaited today, relatives of Mrs. Haines requested Dr. Daw to authorize a second autopsy.

EVEN VETS WOULD PAY DEARLY FOR OHIO BONUS, STUDY SHOWS

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Some war veterans would have to pay more cash in new taxes than they could receive under a bonus plan now before the Ohio senate, a state tax department study showed today.

"One cannot have his cake and eat it too," the report observed.

Three plans for paying from $325,000,000 to $500,000,000 in bonuses to World War II veterans are before the senate, and state representatives said half a dozen more were expected in the house next week.

Veterans would be taxed, too. Under the most ambitious senate plan, the department survey showed, a veteran owning a home with an assessed valuation of $11,000 would pay more than $500 in new taxes. Here's how:

Bonus Would Boost Rate Here to $23

A breakdown of increased property taxes for Mansfield necessary under the Liggitt-Daniels bonus plan, based on the 1945 tax rate of 15.40 mills, shows that the necessary increase of 4.98 mills would increase the Mansfield tax rate to 20.38 mills. The 1946 tax, now being collected, however, is $18.20. Consequently, the soldier bonus plan would boost the Mansfield rate to $23.18.

A resolution by Sens. D. A. Liggitt (R-Logan) and Albert L. Daniels (R.-Highland) calls for raising money to pay bonuses with a $500,000,000 bond issue to be retired through property levies in ten years at not more than 2 per cent interest.

On that basis tax experts said the extra property tax required would be almost 5 mills, or $5 for each $1,000 valuation a year for ten years. The actual yearly rate on a property valued at $10,000 would $49.80 at the start.

The tax increase would vary from $12.45 annually for property valued at $2,500 to $124.59 for that assessed at $25,000, the survey said.

CITY STRIKE IN 17TH DAY

PORTSMOUTH —(INS)— Portsmouth City Service department employes continued their strike into its 17th day today following a three-hour conference that failed to bring an agreement.

City council flatly rejected at the session last night an offer by striking members of the CIO-Public Workers of America to return to work at a ten-cent hourly increase retroactive to Jan. 1.

The striking waterworks, service garage, garbage collection and cemetery employes originally asked a 30 cent pay boost.

All proposals were supplemented by provisions for sick leave, union recognition and bargaining rights.

AWAIT REPLY ON ROUTE 13

The county commissioners and the county engineer today were awaiting a reply from the state department of highways on their proposal to provide a right-of-way for reestablishment of State Route 13 around the Mansfield airport.

The commissioners formally approved establishment of a three-and-one-half mile right-of-way to the east of the airport and set Feb. 3 at 10 a. m., in their office for a hearing on damages to property over which the new road would pass.

They passed a resolution offering the right-of-way to the state if it would include the road in the state system. They pledged that title to the route would be conveyed within 90 days after the route is officially included in the state system.

The county hopes the state will construct a new modern highway around the airport to replace the Route 13 which was abandoned in 1944 when construction work on the airport was started. Since that time the county has maintained an earth-bound detour road around the western edge of the port.

TRUMAN MEETS WITH 'BIG 6'

WASHINGTON— (AP) —President Truman's first meeting with the congressional big six wound up yesterday with Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) reporting good results.

The Republican-Democratic legislative conference at the White House lasted 20 minutes longer than scheduled and ended in what all participants said was an atmosphere of good will.

The president and the four Republican and two Democratic leaders called in Maj. Gen. Robert Littlejohn, war assets administrator, during one part of the conference dealing with war surplus disposals.

Vandenberg, the senate president acting as spokesman for the congressional group after the 50 minute session, told reporters:

"The discussion was confined very definitely to non partisan problems."

In addition to surplus disposition. he said, problems discussed included the question of authorizing the maritime commission to continue shipping operations, authority for which expires March 1 "and must be renewed."

A third decision, Vandenberg said, involved procedure for future conferences of the president and the four senate and two house leaders.

They will reassemble, Vandenberg said, at "the president's option." when he has nonpartisan matters to discuss.

The other Republicans at today's meeting were senate majority leader White, (Me.) House Speaker Martin (Mass.) and House Majority Leader Halleck (Ind.) The Democrats were Senate Minority Leader Barkley (Ky.) and House Minority Leader Rayburn (Tex.)

MEANEST TRAITOR

RENNES, France — (UNS) — French authorities have hung the label of the "meanest traitor" on Roger Flavet, 26, who is charged with betraying his mother and two sisters to the Germans for 1,500 francs ($15). Nothing has been heard from the three women since their arrest as underground workers in 1941.

Even at South Pole, Slicker Has Chance to Turn Dishonest Dollar

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ABOARD USS MT. OLYMPUS IN ANTARCTICA — (AP) — You could have a little gold mine at the South Pole, even without discovering any gold.

All you would have to do is buy gold at the Equator and sell it—at the same price—at the South Pole. The force of gravity would give you a profit because the gold would weigh more than at the Equator.

The added weight is due greatly to the pull of gravity. The earth flattens at the pole, making you closer to the earth's center. Centrifugal force is decreased. At the Equator you are traveling something more than 900 miles per hour as the earth spins on its axis. At Little America the speed is only 150 miles per hour. If you sat in an arm chair at the South Pole, you would make only one complete turn like a swivel chair in 24 hours

So everybody and everything on the Byrd expedition weighs more here than at the Equator. The amount of increased weight between the Equator and the pole itself would be only one-two hundredth per cent. A man weighing 200 pounds at the Equator would weigh 201 pounds at the pole. Gold weighing one ton (2,000 pounds) at the Equator would weigh 10 pounds more at the pole.

That opens an opportunity for a South Pole slicker. Some day luxury ships or planes may bring winter sports enthusiasts to the pole and the slicker could sell gold or other precious metals to unsuspecting tourists who didn't know that corrections should be made for variables in gravity and temperature and elevation.

Any gold found in Antarctica wouldn't weigh quite so much by the time you got it home.

WITH THE SUN shining or trying to shine 24 hours long, there's no darkness to remind you that it's bedtime. Crewmen whose quarters are dark are sent to bed by bugler's taps, but anyone with a porthole in his room gets to wondering what night time looks like. They go to bed at crazy hours and miss many meals. More than one man, after missing breakfast for a couple of weeks and finally arriving on time for the morning meal, thought it was time for movies right after lunch and wondered why the show didn't start.

The evening movies are an adventure in themselves. Many have been of ancient vintage, featured by numerous breakdowns. The most wonderful thing is the unconnected trailers which suddenly appear. One for example, showed Eddie Bracken and Veronica Lake riding in a taxicab in serious conversation. A flight of bombers suddenly appeared and disappeared and the taxicab conversation resumed without loss of a word.

TEMPERATURES have been ranging around freezing and Chief Staff Captain Robert Quackenbush is waiting impatiently for real cold weather. He wants it cold so that he can bolt his cabin door and practice the accordion without disturbing anyone. But Lt. David Jones of Oakland, Calif., assistant electronics officer, isn't waiting for the cold. He borrowed Quackenbush's accordion and practices in the relatively soundproof radio broadcasting room.

Biologist Jack Perkins happily has given up his attempt to capture an albatros until the return trip. He tried once to snare one with a trap towed behind the ship, but lost the trap and albatrosses don't come this far south.

"I'm just as happy," he said. "I heard some crewmen muttering about how it meant bad luck. If I had killed one, I'd have been blamed for getting stuck in the ice pack. I've even had visions of having an albatross hung around my neck."

PLANES JOIN HUNT FOR MISSING BOAT

SALEM, Mass. —(UNS)— One of the biggest air hunts ever launched into the North Atlantic area got underway today.

Eight service planes sped eastward to sweep 50,000 square miles of ocean in a renewed search for the missing Boston trawler Belle and her crew of 17.

The area to be searched extended between Cape Ann and Newfoundland. The Belle has been missing since a week agowhen she sent out distress signals100 miles east of the Massachusetts coast. The hunt had to be abandoned the last three days because of storms and fog.

To America's Producers, America's Thanks!

As this new year begins, America's ranchers and farmers are busy with their winter work—feeding and caring for their livestock. And all America is again properly grateful to you who produce the food to keep us the world's best fed people.

To you who ride the range from Montana to Texas . . . whose teams and tractors till the nation's fertile acres . . . who have labored hard, long hours . . . who, with soil and seed, sunshine and rain, grass and grain, have achieved miracle after miracle of food production—to you America gives thanks! Thanks for the part you have had in all-time record crops of wheat and corn . . . for bumper yields of small grains . . . for livestock numbers at high levels . . . for soaring dairy and poultry production. This abundance of food which you have produced means better nutrition for millions of families—because good nutrition is just good food that's good for you.

Vital as it is, production is only part of the nutritional job. Food must be processed. It has to be transported from surplus-producing areas to the markets where there are great numbers of people to eat it. Here is where Swift & Company comes into the picture. It's our job to provide many of the services required in bringing the foods which you produce to the dinner tables of the nation. Together we are in a vitally important industry. Because nutrition is our business and yours, together we can help build a stronger, healthier America.

Things are NOT always as they seem

A 1-inch pipe and a 4-inch pipe run water into gallon pails. It seems as if the 4-inch pipe would fill 4 times as many pails in a given time. The truth is that it will fill 16 gallon pails while the 1-inch pipe is filling one.

When you read something like this: "Meat in commercial storage on January 1 was about 590,000,000 pounds*", it sounds like a lot of meat.

But this big country consumes about 50,000,000 pounds of meat every day. So when you figure it out, this reserve supply in commercial storage is only enough to last 12 days.

Yes, some meat is frozen during months of peak production and stored until months of low production. But practically all of the beef, veal and lamb that is in storage is the kind preferred for meat loaves, sausage, prepared meats—not the kind that goes over the butcher's block as steaks, roasts, chops, etc. Also, the amount frozen is relatively small, as it has never exceeded 1.9% of the annual beef production, 9/10 of 1% of the lamb, less than 6% of the pork.

*The five-year average for 1941-1945. Does not include meat owned by the government

He Puts the NEW in Nutrition

Dr. H. W. Schultz

We'd like you to meet a Swift scientist, Dr. H. W. Schultz. He is head of the nutrition division of our research laboratories. The work of Dr. Schultz and his associates is mighty important to all of us in the livestock-meat industry. They develop new products which open new markets for meats. This widens outlets for your livestock.

Dr. Schultz is the father of three children. As a scientist he knew growing children needed the body-building proteins of meat. As a father he knew the trouble of scraping and straining meats for the baby and dicing meat for the older children. An idea was born: perhaps Swift & Company could discover a way to prepare canned meats suitable for babies. A research project was undertaken. The scientists went to work!

The research took more than two years. The Swift people consulted with leading doctors, child specialists. They agreed that special meats for babies would be a good thing. Many methods of preparing various kinds of meats were tried. Hundreds of feeding tests were made by families with small children. Finally, six kinds of meat were approved by the doctors, nutritionists, mothers, and the babies themselves. Placed on the market in test cities, these products won immediate acceptance. They are now being sold in many cities, and facilities for their manufacture are being expanded.

These new products—strained and diced meats for babies—create a big new market for meats. There are millions of baby appetites to satisfy.

Martha Logan's Recipe for
Navy Bean Soup

1 pint dried navy beans
2 quarts water
1 cup sliced onion
1 cup diced celery
3 tablespoons butter
½ tablespoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons flour
4 frankfurters

Soak beans in water for several hours or overnight. Drain, add water. Fry onion and celery in butter. Add to beans, simmer 3 to 4 hours or until beans are soft, adding more water as water cooks away. When tender, save out 1 cup beans. Rub other beans through sieve. Reheat to boiling point. Add seasonings and flour mixed with ¼ cup water. Garnish with hot sliced frankfurters and whole beans. Yield: 4 servings.

Meat Packers' Risks

Meat is perishable. It cannot be held for prices to go up. Like all meat packers, Swift & Company must sell, within a few days, this perishable product for what it will bring—no matter what price we paid for it.

We take risks in both buying and selling. In buying livestock the meat packer must pay the price established by competitive bidding of over 26,000 slaughterers. If the meat packer overestimates the quality of an animal, or the amount of meat the animal will produce, or the market demand for the meat, he will lose money. Hidden bruises, wounds, or other defects can create losses on any animal.

In selling, the meat packer must also follow the market trends established by those who buy the meats. He stands the risk that meat demand will fall off and prices decline between the day he buys the livestock and the day he sells the meat—also the risk of accidents and delays in transit which can wash out his profit.

An average profit of less than 2% on sales is a small return for taking these substantial business risks.

An adequate record book is an extremely useful and valuable tool. It usually pays good dividends for the few minutes it takes out of the day's work to keep it up to date.

Specifically, a record book helps a farmer or rancher:

Operate in a businesslike way.
Learn more about the details of his business than ever before.
Know exactly how much he is making from his land and his work.
Find out the weak spots in his enterprises.
Tell whether or not his operations are working out as planned.
Prepare a plan for future operations.
Itemize investments, receipts, and expenses.
Provide a record of all business transactions.
Keep track of bills owed by or to the farm or ranch.
Establish a sound basis for credit.
Comply with government programs.
Prepare income tax returns

There are farm and ranch record books especially prepared for each state which can help you save time and money. Write to your state agricultural college and obtain one. Properly used, it will give you a better understanding of your business and may open the way to increased profits.

Bourns, vice president of Coleman Todd Associates of Mansfield, won the trip with his essay on "Why guaranteed starting should be a winter 'must' for any automobile" in a state-wide contest sponsored by The Standard Oil Company (Ohio).

His essay won the first prize of a trip to Florida. Thirty-four other prizes were U. S. Savings Bonds ranging from $5 to $50.

THE CONTEST was held in connection with the Winter Starting Guarantee offered to Ohio motorists annually by Sohio. Bourns was notified of the award by C. J. Baer, Mansfield division manager for Sohio.

BURGLARS LOOT HOME IN GALION

GALION—Police today were investigating a series of burglaries of Galion homes which was climaxed Wednesday night when the home of Mrs. Letha Wood, 258 Walker street, was ransacked.

Stolen were a complete set of silverware, about two dozen state souvenir spoons and a combination radio and phonograph, according to Robert Wood, son of Mrs. Wood.

Police said a link between the series of breaking and enterings was the use of paper book matches which the burglars used to light their way in homes which was burglarized.

In at least three previous cases burnt matches were found in the rooms of homes which had been broken into. Police said similar evidence also was found in Mrs. Wood's home.

Wood discovered the burglary about 9 p. m. Wednesday when he returned to the residence. The loot included a complete set of silverware with hallow handles and a raised initial "W."

Entrance to the home was made by placing a small dog house under a window, which was broken and the latch opened. The house was empty, as Mrs. Wood is vacationing in Florida.

Sewer Drains Tax Fund, But Nothing Else

HARRISON, N. Y.—(AP)—Town officials looked up from yellowed documents today and admitted it —752 feet of sewer pipe have "disappeared" from under their streets.

The sewer has appeared on city maps since 1913 when it reputedly was installed, and abutting property owners have been taxed for it all this time. Sturdy manhole covers lined the route.

The mystery developed when Joseph J. Sisca, a contractor of nearby Port Chester, bought a lot 18 months ago on a corner to build a house. Maps showed sewers running to his corner from two directions.

He finished the house a few weeks ago and then his men began excavating for the sewer. The 1913 maps showed it was four feet underground. Workmen dug four feet. No sewer. They dug further. Still no sewer. They dug in other places. No luck.

They crawled down a nearby storm sewer manhole. A dummy.

Basil E. Bradner, superintendent of highways for this Westchester county, town, said his investigation showed the manholes had no outlets and that a sewer ended a block away from the Sisca lot.

Town officials directed town counsel to discuss the matter with the county district attorney.

Three Men Unhurt As Engines Collide

BUCYRUS — Three Bucyrus railroad men escaped injury Wednesday when a northbound train collided head-on with a Big Four engine on a siding at Pemberville.

The locomotives were derailed, but cars remained on the rails.

The train was manned by Engineer D. H. Chance, Fireman V. G. Grove and Conductor W. A. Darling.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

BERNARD GEIS cultivates an advertising magnate principally to hear of one of his clients, a "dese and dem" character with a beautiful wife, a marble mansion slightly larger than the Pentagon building, and a couple of million dollars in the bank.

One day the advertising man noticed that there were solid gold plates on the table, and couldn't control a slight gasp of surprise. "What did you think?" asked the host, thoroughly annoyed, "Should we live like pigs?" In the drawing room later, the ad man admired a beautiful painting. "I see you have a Monet," he said. "You know," replied the art collector, "you're the second person who said that!"

There was, however, one time when the millionaire lost his sang froid. He came home unexpectedly and found his pin-up bride embracing a total stranger on the love seat. For days he was wild with distraction. He loved his wife far too much to contemplate divorce. Suddenly he found the perfect solution. He threw out the love seat.

HUBBY WANTED WAGES

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. —(UP)— Pearl Rigdon filed suit for divorce against W. L. Rigdon. She charged mental cruelty. Her principal complaint was that her husband demands $1.50 hourly "wage" if he does any work about their home.

BUCYRUS YOUTH ADMITS THEFTS

BUCYRUS — Crawford county juvenile officers disclosed today that John Franklin Albright, 18, of Bucyrus, has admitted thefts of four billfolds and money from lockers in Bucyrus high school.

Officers said Albright was fined $10 and costs and given a 30-day jail sentence, which was suspended on payment of fine and restitution for the loss.

In admitting the thefts, officers said, Albright implicated a 16-year-old youth, who also is being questioned in connection with the theft of an automobile belonging to Floyd Barrett, of Bucyrus.

The car was found wrecked on the Galion-Bucyrus highway Friday night. The youth and three other boys are being held pending further investigation.

Officers said the boys had admitted taking the Barrett car to go to the Galion-Bucyrus basketball game Friday, separating after their arrival in Galion. One of the youths drove the car back to Bucyrus that night, wrecking it near the city.

Record Crowd Attends Dinner For Methodists

SHELBY—The largest attendance in the history of the annual banquet of the Methodist Men's fellowship was present last night to hear Dr. Tennyson Guyer, of Ohio City, speak at the First Methodist church on "The Sky's the Limit."

He called for church congregations to give their personal support as well as financial aid, and said the only means to insure church attendance of children is "to take them with you."

"One of the most beautiful pictures imaginable is to see an entire family sitting together on a church pew at the worship service," he said.

Approximately 150 men attended the seventh annual dinner, which was served by the Methodist Women's society of Christian Service.

The invocation was given by Jesse Kuhn Other speakers were Rev. John Green, superintendent of the Mansfield Methodist district, and Rev. George C Beebe, pastor of the Shelby Methodist church. Toastmaster was Charles Wilson.

State Jaycee Leader to Talk At 'Bosses' Night Meeting

It'll be "Yes, sir," in reverse as Mansfield Junior Chamber of Commerce members invite their "bosses" to the Jaycee's annual Bosses' Night dinner Jan 22 at 6:30 p. m at the Mansfield-Leland hotel

With Philip C Ebeling, state and national Jaycee leader, scheduled to speak on "A Time for Decision," and an entertainment program planned, Jaycees are looking forward to the meeting as an opportunity to "get to know their bosses."

Ray Bush, social chairman, said the program will include "short speeches and pletny of turkey." Ebeling will talk following the dinner at 7 p m

Ebeling, a Dayton attorney, is a member of the executive committee of the Ohio State Bar association, and a member of the board of trustees and the executive committee of Ohio Wesleyan university. He is past president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and has been state president, national director and national vice president of the Jaycees, and a member of the board of directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce

PHILIP C. EBEBLING

Tickets for the dinner must be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce office, Farmers Bank building, as none will be sold at the door, Bush said.

Established as an annual entertainment in 1938, the Bosses' Night dinners were cancelled during the war

AGENCY TAKES STEPS TO AID BROKEN HOMES

Community Chest Studies Plan To Form Welfare Unit.

to selling the Community Chest and its affiliated Red Feather agencies to the public the year around, Hout said.

He said the Community Chest wanted a public relations committee set up to represent each of the Red Feather agencies.

Defends Action.

In her report to members, Mrs. Williams said the Community Chest and Visiting Nurses association had been unjustly criticized for discontinuing the Visiting Nurses' service late in 1946.

She explained that calls for the nurses had dropped to less than three a day per nurse so the agencies assumed that the public no longer wanted the service.

Nurses couldn't go into homes unless they were requested by physicians, and the requests had dropped sharply in recent years, she said. Only 564 wholly charitable calls for nurses were received during the last year the agency was in existence, she pointed out. Other calls were from persons who were financially able to employ nursing service elsewhere, she added.

The agency's successful financial year was shown in the report of the last fund campaign which produced $97,325 on a goal of $94,067, or an excess of 3.4 percent.

Allocations totaling $94,607 by the Chest have been set up for this year as against $87,319 last year, Treasurer Orlo L. Smith reported.

Here are the amounts Red Feather agencies have been allocated this year (first figure) and the last year's allocations:

Friendly House, $13,748, $11,650; YMCA, $12,342, $11,552; YWCA, $9,213, $9,780; Salvation Army, $8,900, $8,800; Boy Scouts, $7,971, $7,750; Central Services, (salaries, office supplies and upkeep, rent, and other items) $6,971, $7,102; St. Vincent de Paul society, $4,200, $6,000; Hospital Bureau, $6,974, $5,895; Girl Scouts, $5,131, $5,375; shrinkage, $5,000, $4,780; campaign expenses, $3,000, $2,931; Visiting Nurses, $625, $2,335; Dental Clinic, $1,760, $2,158; Milk Fund and Student Aid, $1,523, $875; emergency relief (unallocated), $500, $586; contingency (1947) $6,200.

* * *

Trustees Elected.

Elected to the board of trustees as representatives of Red Feather agencies were:

William Bell, representing the Hospital Bureau; R. M. Calene, YMCA; Thomas M. Dorsey, St. Vincent de Paul society; Mrs. Irl Fisher, YWCA; Mrs. Joy Herbert, Girl Scouts; Miss Barbara Hartman, Friendly House; George H. Smith, Salvation Army; Mrs. Robbert Stevens, Dental Clinic, and W. C. Mead, Boy Scouts.

Other trustees chosen last night were:

Edwin L. Balyeat, Donald Black, Roger Bolin, Lloyd Braden, Fred Cahall, A. E. Courtney, Dean Dickerson, G. L. Draffan, Clarence L. Fike, H. W. Gibbs, Mrs. A. J. Goldsmith, Mrs. Ruth Grimm, Oliver C. Shultz, W. E. Slabaugh jr., G. W. Stephens, Desmond Walker, Roy Waxler, Ken Woodman, Norman L. Wolfe, and Orlo L. Smith.

Named new members of the budget committee for three-year terms were J. C. Gorman, chairman; Mrs. Hamilton Walter, Harry Bowman, Clarence L. Fike, and Dean Dickerson.

Hold-over members of the committee are J. W. Cook, J. G. Tuber, Robert Stevens, A. E. Courtney, H. W. Arlin, Mrs. Mary Gilbert, and Roger Bolin.

NEWEST MARKET—The White Front Market, at 219 South Main street, is Mansfield's latest special food market. The market, one of three owned by the J. Fred Schmidt Packing company of Columbus, is under management of Herman Spear, formerly of Marion. The market, equipped with the latest in modern refrigeration, carries only grade A and double A meats and staple groceries, Spear said today. Other employes include Glenn Moore, Paul Kissel and Mrs. Spear. L. A. City of Marion, general manager of the company's stores, was here for the formal opening Thursday.

ORIGINAL PLAN OFTEN REVISED

the engineering talents for a complete, detailed lay-out of plans," Conklin said.

* * *

24 Miles Long.

By using Conklin's choice of roads, with Hanley road to the south, his belt-line system would be approximately 24 miles long. The original system would be only 13 miles long.

Rusk's ideas have been adjusted to the factor of needed room to the north for industrial expansion, particularly around the new municipal airport.

"Lands of the Ohio State reformatory interfere with normal growth at the immediate edge of the city so that, for purposes of development, it would be relatively useless to spend large amounts of funds in improving Piper road, which runs for the greater part of its length through OSR lands," Rusk said.

"It seems obvious that any industrial expansion along railroad sidings must take place north of OSR, or near the airport along the Erie," he stated.

* * *

Abandoned In 1944.

That location is where the county is already asking the state highway department to relocate State Route 13, which was abandoned in 1944 when construction of the airport was begun.

Accordingly, the county engineer has adjusted his ideas of the original belt-line system, which in 1926 he helped to plan, to provide for a northern highway over the Amoy-Pavonia road. He would extend Trimble road directly north to Amoy-Pavonia road. He would extend Trimble road directly north to Amoy and Illinois avenue north to State Route 545 and under the Erie tracks to connect with the proposed relocation of State Route 13. It would total about 20 miles in length.

Cunning's adjustments to the original belt-line proposal call for a double line of thoroughfares and would utilize even more distant roads.

"Admittedly it's a more ambitious program and would be almost entirely up to the state highway department," Cunning says.

His most remote roadway, containing about 10 miles of entirely new right-of-way, would divert U. S. Route 42 southward over Laver road (three and one-half miles east of Mansfield), curve gently southeastward over new rights-of-way and Hull and Shadel roads, pass directly westward on Straub road, curve northwestward to Alta, run directly north on Home road, curve eastward fo Poth road and continue east over Piper and Fleming Falls roads to rejoin Route 42. It would be about 25 miles long.

* * *

Smaller Belt Inside.

Inside that path would be a smaller belt, about 18 miles long, utilizing Finney and Trimble roads to the west, Poth and Piper roads to the north, Stewart road and State Route 39 to the east, and Hull, Race and Logan roads to the south. That line would need about two miles of new right-of-way.

"The city is already bigger than most people think and a belt-line very close to the city would soon become city streets. I don't think the state will help build city streets," Cunning declares.

Statler holds to the original belt-line location over Trimble, Cook and Hesseldon roads, and Illinois and Longview avenues.

"That would be closer to the city and the shortest line is still the best engineering. Perhaps later additional belts would be needed farther out, principally over Piper and Stewart roads," he says.

All of the belt-line proposals are motivated by a desire to aid in community development at the same time as providing traffic relief. The latter appears to be the state highway department's greatest consideration in proposing the expressway.

Some insect pests can develop a tolerance to various types of exterminators and controls.

STRIKE PEACE EASES LONDON FOOD CRISIS

Workers Begin Returning To Jobs Today.

LONDON —(INS)— Fifty thousand London workers essential to the distribution of food began moving back to their jobs today as the 12-day walkout ended.

Dockers, food handlers and other workers who quit work in sympathy with striking truckmen when the government sent troops to take their place were ready to return to work Saturday and restore labor peace in London.

The full distribution of supplies is not expected to return to normal until next Wednesday. There is almost no hope for a full week's meat ration in London this weekend.

Editorials in the morning newspapers unanimously admit the settlement was a victory for the strikers. Industrial commentators interpret it as a defeat for constitutional methods of industrial negotiation.

The London Daily Mail wrote: "This is another triumph for the unofficial strike and another demonstration of how weak a timorous government can be in the face of its own militant supporters. Authority once again has been flouted. New encouragement has been given for others to do likewise."

Meanwhile troops continue moving essential foodstuffs from wholesale markets to London shops.

I. J. Imhoff Heads Ashland Group

ASHLAND — Irvin J. Imhoff, of Milton township, has been elected president of the Ashland County Association of Township Trustees and Clerks at the meeting held in the courthouse assembly room.

Others named to office include Paul Shank, Montgomery township, secretary, and Harry Dakin, Sullivan township, member of the executive committee.

N-J Carrier Nancy Pore Calls F-H Summer Camp Her Hobby

"Friendly House camp is my hobby" says Nancy Pore, 12, one of the few girls on News-Journal routes in Mansfield.

Nancy has learned to do a lot of things through helping her brother, Richard, on Routes 123 and 48, and one of the nicest things she has learned is that spending money for something like Friendly House camp is even more fun than earning it.

* * *

SHE SPEAKS PROUDLY OF the fun she has at the summer camp session at Hidden Hollow where she joins other children from the city in a recreational and relaxing program.

Today's story of News-Journal "newsies" includes, besides Nancy and her brother, Richard, Bob Keller, 83 East First street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keller; Harry Roberts, 286 East First street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Roberts, and Leroy Divelbiss, who lives with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Divelbiss, 114 Foster steet.

Nancy and Richard are children of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Pore, 313 Superior street. Their route includes Cleveland avenue, Arch street, Greenlawn avenue and Jeannette avenue.

Nancy has helped her brother for six years. She has money in the bank and is saving to buy herself a watch. She's an ambitious youngster and seems to know just what she wants to do with her share of the proceeds.

Richard, who is a junior at Senior high, uses most of his earnings to buy needed clothes, but he's saving some, too.

"I've bought a bicycle," Bob Keller says proudly.

Bob's route covers First street, Hedges street, Willis avenue, and Glenn avenue, and is chalked up on the circulation chart as Route No. 45. He's in the eighth grade at John Simpson.

He, too, attends Friendly House.

* * *

"I THINK IT'S PRETTY NICE down there," he says.

Harry Roberts concentrates on his YMCA program. And he, too, is learning thrift.

"My brother, Ernie, and I have a bank account of $100," Harry explained, adding that he spends some of his earnings on clothes and banks the rest. His route is No. 120, and takes in First, Second, Bushnell and Oak streets.

Leroy Divelbiss has had his route No. 44 just nine months and already has $47 in the bank. He's in the seventh grade at Johnny Appleseed and outside "working hours" likes to play basketball at the Salvation Army. Leroy is saving his money for a new suit and roller skates, he says.

His route, with 95 customers, covers Park avenue east, part of Luther place, Bushnell street, East Second street, Bentley street and a couple of customers on Foster street.

BILL TILDEN JAILED ON PLEA OF GUILTY

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— William G. (Big Bill) Tilden, former world tennis champion, was sentenced yesterday to nine months in the county jail after pleading guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a 14-year-old junior high school boy.

Ordering Tilden to see a psychiatrist after his release, Superior Judge A. A. Scott denied Tilden's plea for immediate probation and stay of execution.

After serving his time, the court ruled, Tilden will be on probation for five years and "must never be in the company of either male or female juveniles unaccompanied by their parents."

Ohio Lobby Law Antiquated, Says Hummel, Urging Change

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Ohio's antiquated lobbying law is making inadvertent fins of "hundreds of persons" and should be amended, Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel contended today.

The law, which Hummel described as "very indefinite," makes almost any person who expresses an opinion of any pending legislation to a solon without first registering with the secretary of state liable to a fine of $100 to $5,000, one to two years in the penitentiary, or both.

As a result, the law is almost impossible of enforcement, Hummel stated.

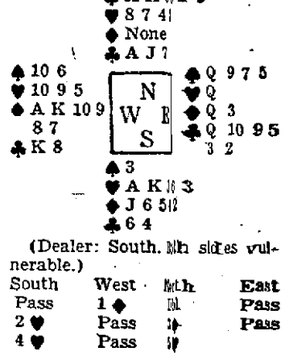
At present there are 68 lobbyists registered with Hummel's office. A few stragglers may still register. Even at that, the number is greater ta date than it has been in recent years.

However, dozens of people "back home," who may express opinions to their legislators on the week-ends, could conceivably be charged with violating the law.

Barclay On Bridge

MANY OF the prettiest plays in the game are the which offer the opposition a choice of evils. The declarer first builds up a situation which he has planned. Then the opponent must make his selection after the next move. If it is a squeeze, his option is between either of two or more different cards, any of which will cost him a trick. If it is a throw-in play, he can pick between two or more different leads on the return, either of which wrecks him.

South, who was a canny attorney, John J. Robinson, playing with another keen member of the same profession, Archi McGrath, was sound to refuse that slam invitation, feeling he had already bid enough. Because of his pass and his ensuing play, he won a fine score for the Montauk Club of Brooklyn in the strong Mayfair club duplicate in New York.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♦	Dbl.	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	5 ♦

He ruffed the diamond K lead with dummy's heart 2, scored the spade A, ruffed the spade 2 with the heart 3, ruffed the diamond 4 with the heart 4, then led the heart 8 to the K. He ruffed the diamond 5 with the heart 7 and the spade 4 with the heart A. He laid down the heart J, discarding dummy's club 7, then threw West in with the heart 6 to the 10. West had left only the diamond A-10 and club K-8, North the club A and spade K-J-9, South the diamond J-6 and club 6-4. East had only the spade Q and club Q-10-9.

All that West could now score was his diamond A. After that, a club return would give North the remaining three tricks, and a diamond would give South the J of that suit, whereupon a club lead to dummy would bring the other two tricks needed to complete his contract.

It was a nice example of piling an impossible assignment onto the shoulders of an opponent.

LINCOLN STORY, NEW FICTION ON LIBRARY LIST

Novel of India Rates High Among Book Arrivals.

Stories of the Far East are mixed with those of American background and the much discussed foreign policy is sandwiched between a small town in New York state and biographies of famous Americans in the collection of fiction and non-fiction to be placed in circulation Monday at the Mansfield public library.

THE LAND AND THE WELL, by Hilda Wernher, is the story of a Hindu family and its ancient customs and ancestral pride. Birth and death, marriage and love, jealousy and temptation, drought and famine are all blended together into a moving and dramatic novel of India.

* * *

Against the background of New York City, Waldo Frank tells you the story of Jonathan Hartt and Evan Cleve in ISLAND IN THE ATLANTIC. It is a story of two men of opposite backgrounds and their individual struggle for fulfillment as law partners and as enduring friends. It is told with the color and life of the political and cultural developments from the end of the Civil War period to 1912.

For the scene of FORTUNE, SMILE ONCE MORE, Mary Floyd Williams has chosen San Francisco in 1851. In it she has written of the time when the first attempt was made to impose some order on the turmoil that had come with the gold rush. In particular, Miss Williams tells the exciting story of a man who escapes from an Australian convict settlement. There, in the lusty atmosphere of that colorful era he gambles his happiness against the relentless power of the Vigilantes.

* * *

Charles A. Beard, in AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY IN THE MAKING, 1932-1940, writes a record for the serious reader interested in the truth of the case concerning our foreign policy. It has passages from the public documents of political leaders which show what they believed in and intended to work for as a foreign policy for the United States in a world first torn by controversy and later aflame with war.

On account of Ira A. Hirshman's efforts as a special representative of the State department to save the lives of refugees in the Balkan countries, is told in LIFE LINE TO A PROMISED LAND, by Hirshman, himself. Because of his position, he was exempt from the provisions of the Trading with the Enemy Act and was able to deal not only with the envoys of the Balkan nations but also with secret agents of the Nazis.

LINCOLN'S WAR CABINET, by Burton J. Hendrick, is a collective biography by one of America's foremost historians. In it he recreates Lincoln's advisers, with their ambitions, emotions, and their qualifications for membership, in the cabinet which Lincoln was to mold into a team in the struggle to save the nation. The total result is a new picture of Lincoln, the president.

For 10 years Granville Hicks lived in a country town in upstate New York and took an active part in life of the community. SMALL TOWN describes and interprets his experiences. It is partly autobiographical, for he is writing, not as a visiting sociologist but as a person who lived in the town, worked hard and felt deeply. It is especially valuable for it shows the relation between the intellectual and the small town.

Other non-fiction: MARGIE, Brown; LAKE CHAMPLAIN AND LAKE GEORGE, Van le Water; JAPANESE EVACUATION FROM THE WEST COAST, U. S. Dept. of War; ON SECOND THOUGHT, Gray; BLUE WATER MEN, Crosby; NEW CITY, Hilberseimer; FINE ART REPRODUCTIONS, N. Y. Graphic Society; PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH FOLD ART, Kauffman; WORDSWORTH ANTHOLOGY COLLECTION, Housman; SEQUESTERED VALES OF LIFE, Pease.

TWO SENTENCES REWARD KIWANIS FOR INTEREST IN FRIENDLY HOUSE

In two sentences, spoken yesterday by Mrs. Russell Gimbel, wife of the Friendly House director, Mansfield Kiwanis club members found ample reward for the club's nearly quarter of a century of active interest in the Friendly House.

Mrs. Gimbel said: "The good that you do comes back to you in one form or another. Kiwanis has done so much for Friendly House during the 21 years that I have been there that I have hardly been able to keep track of it."

Mrs. Gimbel gave an illustrated lecture on the work done at Friendly House and its summer camp, Hidden Hollow.

Among the many things she attributed to the generosity of the Kiwanis club were modern tools for the wood working shop, which she described as "the best that it is possible to have," and walk-in cooler and cabin at the F. H. summer camp.

"After years of dreaming we look forward to a new Friendly House," Mrs. Gimbel said. "If we accomplish this we shall consider our life efforts well spent.

"Although we consider the location of the present building as being in the part of town where we can best do our work, she said, "there is a joke down there that the termites hold hands every time a train goes by in order to keep the building from falling down."

"With 48 per cent of our children colored and with 27 nationalities represented, we are striving to break down that barrier at Fourth and Main streets," Mrs. Gimbel said.

Slides which showed the many and varied activities engaged in by the children lent credence to the statement made by Mrs. Gimbel that the philosophy upon which Friendly House operates is that "busy children never get into trouble."

Ira Bronson was program chairman of the luncheon held in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Store Uses 20 Tons of Steel For New Sign

Large figures are required to describe the three new large neon signs being erected above the entrance and on the roof of the M. O'Neil company store in Mansfield.

Some 20 tons of steel and about 2,500 feet of neon tubing are incorporated in the three signs whose total value is around $15,000, a company official said.

The vertical signs are 35 feet high. Their width varies from six to 10½ feet. Letters on the roof signs are five feet high and are of porcelain construction.

The signs have been ready for installation for some time but the company officials delayed their erection because of a desire not to block the sidewalks during the congested holiday shopping season.

The signs are being installed by the Mansfield Structural Steel company and the Bellows Neon Sign company.

England Tests 'Labor' Government

PROMISED ending of the 10-day strike of London transport workers, and their sympathizers, does not change a very general impression that this has served as a test of Great Britain's "Labor" government, and that it has been found wanting in the very things it had been expected to accomplish.

That the walkout was unauthorized by the unions to which strikers belong is of minor importance, as there is little appearance of justification for an organization that fails to exercise control over its own members.

It is highly important, however, that responsible officials of the Labor government found it necessary to resort to the use of troops to move food supplies into London to prevent starvation—just as would have been done had the "conservatives" remained in power.

It is also interesting to note that Britain Communists took full advantage of the strike situation, with distribution of screeds urging the strikers to stay out, and accusing union leaders of "betraying" their members.

Whatever may finally come of it, England's present government, with a top-heavy Labor majority, must be regarded as "a friend of the workingman," and if it shows itself unable to cope with the task it appears strongly probable that the next effort will be to shift to governmental controls that will have at least as great regard for the general welfare as for any specific group.

It should be beneficial, in the United States, to have knowledge of England's experience as a background for further experimentation in labor-management-government relations in this country.

Approaching Friendly House Goal

WHILE it is regrettable that the Friendly House campaign goal of $60,000 was not quite reached within the time limit that had been fixed, this should not be taken to mean that this worthy project is to fail, or that the $60,000 mark will not be reached and passed within the next few days.

The number of willing contributors thus far, and the amounts of some of the individual and group contributions, indicate the spread of community interest that has been aroused in Friendly House and its work.

An appealing thing about this campaign has been the number of contributions of small amounts from people who really could not "afford to give," but whose appreciation of Friendly House service is such that they wished to share in assuring enlargement of its field of usefulness.

Because there was no general canvass, there are undoubtedly many who would be willing, and who are well able to contribute, but who have not yet done so—and it is for these that the campaign headquarters (Moorhead salesroom, 87 Park avenue west) will be kept open a few days more.

Echoes of Nuernberg Trial Persist

WHILE the Nuernberg trials of German war criminals got ample attention in the press, it's a safe bet that they did not make too serious an impression on the average American. Many were inclined merely to say the Nazis got about what they deserved.

A few legal minds, like Senator Robert Taft in his speech at Kenyon college and George A. Finch of the American Bar association, questioned the soundness of the trials—not for the punishment meted out but for the way in which they were set up.

These lawyers and one large Chicago newspaper maintain that the Germans were hanged or otherwise punished for making aggressive war at a time when there was no specific law against waging war. They maintain this violates a key principle of all free peoples: that a man cannot be punished for an act which is not considered a crime until some time after it was committed.

The experts who built up the Nuernberg case, on the other hand, point to the Kellogg-Briand pact of 1829 renouncing aggressive war.

This is an argument which may rage on in history books for centuries. If Nuernberg is responsible for establishing that waging of aggressive war is a crime, the future may forgive any temporary breach of the principle of ex post facto.

At any rate, it may be well for parents not to forget too soon what they have read about the Nuernberg trials. Serious-minded youngsters may be coming home from school and arguing about the trials for a long time to come.

Getting An Education 'By Proxy'

RETURNED GI's have set the harassed colleges many new problems, one of which is that some who are married to former stenographers have been sending their wives to classes to take lecture notes, and staying away themselves.

This should not really be such a problem. It presents far fewer complications than the experience Harvard university is said to have had with a prince from one of the semi-independent states of India. Arriving a number of years ago with six servants, including a valet, the prince was later discovered to be sending his valet to class and himself enjoying the great outdoors.

When taken to task by the university authorities, the prince was much astonished. "Why shouldn't he go to class for me?" he asked. "He is my servant, and does whatever work I ask of him."

Such practices, if unchallenged, would naturally result in the prince's valet and the GI's wives getting the education.

Byrnes Called Molotov's Bluff By Threat to End Treaty Talks

(Note—This is the second of Drew Pearson's columns on the secret conversations between Secretary of State Byrnes and the Russians which finally broke the USA-USSR deadlock.)

* * *

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Climax of the bitter, long-drawn diplomatic battle between Russia and the United States came when the Yugoslavs walked out of the peace talks in New York, and then came round to Secretary Byrnes next day thinking they could horse-trade. They found, however, that the long-suffering secretary of state was in no horse-trading mood.

He told them that the United States was reconciled to the fact that there would be no peace treaty and he didn't want to discuss the matter further. U. S. troops, he said, would remain in Trieste indefinitely.

This horrified the Yugoslavs. Also it worried the Russians. Apparently they thought the United States was so anxious to sign a peace treaty that Byrnes could be badgered and bullied indefinitely.

So when Byrnes told Yugoslav delegate Edvard Kardelj that American patience had reached the end of its rope, Molotov came to see him immediately.

In much more conciliatory mood, the Russian foreign minister asked what the trouble was.

"We've been here for days," replied Byrnes, "and in all that time the only things we can agree on are three minor provisions in the Italian treaty which involve the use of the word 'or' and the use of the words 'in particular.' On the other 49 provisions, there has been no agreement and no prospect of one; yet these provisions were passed by a two-thirds vote in Paris, as stipulated by Russia.

"We've adopted the Russian plan of procedure, but even so you won't come to an agreement," Byrnes continued. "So the United States simply cannot afford to wait. I, for one, am reconciled to not having a treaty. We'll just get along without one. I've been the man who has been pushing for the treaties, but now I've changed my mind."

Molotov Reverses.

Byrnes also proceeded to give Molotov some friendly but straight-from-the-shoulder advice on US-USSR relations.

"You don't seem to realize," he said, "that Russia has used up the tremendous reservoir of goodwill it had built up in this country. Most people had great admiration for Russia. But it's gone now. When you follow a consistent policy of calling us names, naturally you can't expect us to love you."

Byrnes also suggested that Molotov check with some of the heads of the Russian satellite nations who had close contacts among Czech-Americans and Yugoslav-Americans, regarding the sentiment of the American public toward Russia.

Molotov seemed shaken by Byrnes' statement. Almost immediately he said he would agree to 15 important provisions in the Italian treaty.

And in the regular treaty talks which followed, he began to make decisions and shell out favorable concessions as if he really meant business.

From that point on, there was smooth sailing. In the end, the Russians even accepted the important principle of arms inspection by the United Nations, including inspection on their own sovereign soil.

Molotov, of course, had received new instructions from the Politburo in Moscow. Also he had received assurances from Byrnes that there was no danger of the United States changing its position on the veto for at least a year.

These Politburo instructions were largely the result of the firm but friendly advice given Molotov by Byrnes during weeks of talking to each other in Paris and New York. Byrnes finally had won out.

Free Press in Moscow.

After the atmosphere cleared and the Russians suggested that they play host for the German-Austrian peace talks, Byrnes took the liberty of giving his Russian friend some additional advice.

"When you hold the Moscow conference," he told Molotov, "my advice to you is to let the press come in and operate freely without any censorship. If you do that you will win more friends and build up more goodwill than you have any idea of." Molotov agreed in principle.

That is a brief glimpse at the inside of some of our most important diplomatic conversations; a glimpse also at the canny statesmanship and diplomatic charm of the man who weathered one of the roughest diplomatic periods in our history and left our foreign relations much better for his work.

Care After Abdominal Operations.

PEOPLE who must undergo abdominal operation today are not only more comfortable in the period immediately following their session with the surgeon than ever before, but they run much less risk of death.

This great reduction in the number who succumb to operations on the abdomen is the result of advances made in the past ten years and, according to Dr. Albert O. Singleton of Texas University, it is due in large part to the fact that we know more about complications of operation and how to prevent them.

The first step in making operation safe is to put the stomach and bowel at rest by keeping water and food out of them; the second is to banish gas.

Cause of Contractions.

Gas causes contractions of the bowel just as do food and water. Keeping the intestinal tract quiet prevents rupturing of the bowel, blocking of the bowel, and peritonitis or inflammation of the lining membrance of the abdominal cavity.

Swelling of the abdomen or distention was formerly a common complication of abdominal operations. Dr. Singleton believes that this distention is due to swallowed air. In order to prevent it, he suggests that a suction tube be inserted through the nose, before any abdominal operation is performed. This tube is attached to a suction pump and if the pump is kept working during the operation, distention of the abdomen will not occur.

Second Important Point.

A second important point in preventing complications following abdominal operations is to keep up the normal body functions. This is done by first making sure that the patient gets plenty of fluids. If he cannot take them by mouth they can be given by injection into a vein or under the skin. Care is taken that the patient does not get too much salt.

The suction tube is not used in cases of children. During its use it must be carefully watched to make sure that it does not become blocked.

OUR war taxes on "luxuries" such as electric light bulbs are to be continued in these piping days of non-hostilities.

But so far our legislators have not gotten around to taxing bachelors $3 a head as now proposed in Argentina . . . Every bachelor I know says that's one more reason to dislike Argentina.

The theory in Argentina is that if one man pays two dollars for a marriage license another should be willing to pay three dollars for his freedom . . . The idea is to equalize license and liberty.

Argentina intends to subsidize marriage . . . Every happy laughing couple will receive $625 from the government.

Era of Regimentation For Teachers Ending.

WASHINGTON—It is pleasant to be able to report that one of the first problems being seriously studied by the 80th congress is the question of more pay for public school teachers.

Already Nevada's Senator Pat McCarran has introduced a measure authorizing expenditure of 600 million dollars of federal money to boost salaries of the nation's instructors—who currently get less cash than the average unskilled laborer, and who are worse off financially than a buck private in the army, all things considered.

If that, or a similar measure becomes law, undoubtedly it will do much to stop the exodus of trained and experienced teachers from the country's classrooms.

(More than half a million of them quit the profession during the past five years, leaving at least 10,000 classrooms idle this winter.)

But money alone—or at least the comparatively small raises provided by such a measure—won't woo back all the men and women who, since shaking off the restrictive shackles of the teaching profession, have been living like human beings, and liking it.

A scene of some 15 years ago comes to this correspondent's mind.

The three board members sat around the stove in the little ramshackle country school that night. Two of them smoked placidly. The third had pulled the coal bucket up near his chair, for use whenever his mouth got too full of tobacco juice to permit talking.

There was a strong smell of whisky in the air. One of them had brought a bottle which they had passed around outside. After all, hiring a teacher was more or less of an occasion.

As poker-faced as possible, I sat there, outlining my training, experience and credentials. Inwardly, I was boiling.

For had I lighted a pipe, cigar or cigaret, had I taken a chew of tobacco or one drink out of their bottle, not only would I have lost any chance of that job, but also I would have been blackballed in all the surrounding school districts.

In two years of country school teaching, I had learned that parents and board members could set whatever examples they chose to their children—school teachers must live by a code as ancient, as strict and as regimented as the most fanatical religious order.

It would be nice to say that that situation has changed completely today, and it is true that in some communities it has improved immeasurably. It is doubtful if the board member who once criticized me for keeping company with a girl teacher in a nearby district would go that far today.

But unfortunately, there still are many sections of the country where a teacher's life remains ridiculously regimented. For instance—and these are facts gathered and documented by various educational groups and associations:

In several sections of the country, women teachers are not allowed to marry, or if they do, a clause in their contract calls for immediate resignation.

A Connecticut law forbids teachers to smoke, and innumerable other states make it a firing offense by custom, although not by law.

Most districts still frown on teachers who (1) participate in political campaigns, (2) take sides in any local issues, (3) read any sort of printed material—books, magazines or newspapers—whose editorial content is contrary to the community's views.

For a long time, the nation's teachers tolerated this sort of regimentation, just as they put up with living in genteel rags, but that day is passing or has passed!

And now that they've finally made the break, thousands strong, it's going to take more than a raise by congress to bring them back. They're also going to have to be treated like average human beings, who have a right to live normal, individual lives of their own.

(The next column discusses how low wages and regimentation are combining to eliminate the last asset left today's teachers—substituting ridicule for the respect they once were accorded.)

Timely Editorial

No American Race.

In support of the oft-quoted assertion that the only real Americans are Indians, an anthropologist has found that while five outstanding types represent different sections of this country there is no American race.

After measuring the head and face size of 3,000 soldiers while gathering data for gas mask design, Dr. Alice M. Brues came to the conclusion that the famous American melting pot, despite the reduced immigration of the last 20 years, has failed to produce an American race. The imprint of the physical differences long existing in Europe, she discovered, is still on the American people, reflecting the various European nations from which their ancestors came.

Her anthropological discoveries will surprise few people, since it is comparatively easy for even the amateur to note characteristic facial structures of many races almost anywhere in America. Several hundred more years probably will produce the alterations to a standard which Dr. Brues seemed more or less surprised not to find. —Toledo Blade.

Softening City's Water Supply Timely Subject For Discussion

(Editor's Note—Public interest in the discussion of softening Mansfield's water supply, as is being done in some cities, justifies presentation of further information on this subject. The following article by Wesley W. Purdy, of Mansfield, registered civil engineer, touches on some of the points involved in city-wide water softening. During navy service in World War II Mr. Purdy was in charge of water supply as public works officer at the naval advance base depot, Davisville, R. I.)

* * *

By WESLEY W. PURDY

EFFORTS to ascertain the opinion of citizens of Mansfield regarding softening of the city's water supply are very timely.

It is exceedingly important that the citizens of Mansfield be advised of the fact in connection with the construction of our new water supply and distribution system and of the proposed treatment of the water supply. After they have the fact then they can and should express their opinions to the proper city officials.

The following statements are believed to be the basic facts regarding water supply and water treatment.

1—The Clear Fork reservoir will impound an adequate water supply for many years to come.

2—The present well supplies will furnish adequate water supply for normal present uses.

3—It is the present plan to continue to use the existing wells and to provide facilities for purification of approximately five million gallons of water daily.

4—Present plans do not provide for any degree of water softening. In fact the purification process may add some hardness to the treated water.

5—The only additional equipment required to soften Clear Fork water is the very simple equipment required to add the dosage of chemicals required for softening. The capital expenditure required for water softening is negligible. The added cost for soft water is almost entirely a daily operating cost for chemicals.

6—City water can be purified and softened to approximately 70 parts per million at reasonable expense and without material change in the taste of the water. Domestic water softeners normally reduce the hardness of the water to much less than 70 parts per million.

7—Softening the city water to 70 parts per million would extend the benefits of soft water to the great percentage of domestic consumers who feel they cannot afford private softeners.

8—The direct benefits of soft water can be measured in a great reduction of soap required in the household, reduction in the cost of replacing hot water coils and reduction in plumbing repairs due to hot water pipes clogging.

9—The city's consulting engineers are working at present under instructions which provide for the construction of the Clear Fork dam, construction of water mains to carry an adequate supply for the city and for construction of purification plant which will only provide for one half of the city's supply and for no water softening at all. This plan contemplates maintaining all of the city's present wells and pumping plant.

10—The chief engineer of the state health department recommends, but does not require that the city build facilities adequate to treat 100 per cent of the city's requirements from the Clear Fork reservoir.

11—It is undoubtedly the desire of your city officials to provide Mansfield's citizens with the type of water supply and water treatment that the citizens want. The News-Journal has performed an excellent public service in presenting this issue. The citizens of Mansfield should express their wishes before plans are completed.

Liberal Republicans Insist on Being Heard.

WASHINGTON—The first brush, in the senate, between the solid phalanx of regular Republicans and the minority of liberal Republicans came out exactly as expected. The liberals rounded off with some stirring talk, and the regular Republicans went right on with their business as it had been first planned and laid out.

But this does not mean that the liberals with the Republican majority can be blithely ignored during the present session. They are highly articulate.

They are quite indifferent to the frowns of the leadership. And they intend to make themselves heard on every possible occasion.

The test came on continuation of the senate's special defense investigating committee. The Republican committee on policy, under the efficient chairmanship of Sen. Robert A. Taft, had decided to grant this committee an additional year of existence.

The reason for the decision was simple. It lay in the stout, determined figure of Maine's Sen. Owen Brewster. If the committee was given a new lease on life, Brewster would be its chairman. That opened a vista which Brewster found irresistible. After all, hadn't one man, Harry S. Truman, moved from the chairmanship of that committee to the presidency?

But there were also good reasons to hesitate. Brewster had been talking about an investigation of the American occupation of Germany. An investigation could upset the apple cart of our policy in Europe, as responsible men such as Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg very well knew.

Moreover, a sensationalized investigation in Germany would encroach on the field of the senate's new armed forces committee. One of the reasons for the LaFollette-Monroney congressional-reorganization bill was to prevent such overlapping.

Finally a compromise was worked out that was intended to placate all concerned. The defense investigating committee, with its promise of sensational headlines, was due to be continued and that would make Brewster happy. But in return he would have to promise to keep out of Germany and off the toes of the armed forces committee.

The nature of this compromise was not, of course, announced to the senate. But it was well known to the Republican rebels. Against that background, they denounced the plan to continue the special committee.

Taft defended the action of the leadership. He denied that continuation of the defense committee was a violation of the intention of congressional reorganization.

Then Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon took the floor. As a member of the armed forces committee, he had, of course, sat in on the session at which the compromise with Brewster was agreed to. Making eight points, Morse showed pretty conclusively that there was no case for any special committee. To make his position consistent, he withdrew a request he had previously put before the senate for a special committee to investigate army and navy courtmartials. Instead Morse recommended that this investigation be carried out by members of the new armed forces committee.

No one had any illusions, while the debate went on, that the position of the Republican leadership would be altered. The leaders know where they want to go. They are on the way to ultimate victory in 1948.

Nevertheless, the rebels will be heard from again and again. They may not be able to change any votes in the senate. It is just possible, however, that they may change some votes out in the country and that is why the leadership is likely to be more and more short-tempered with these rebellious Republicans.

Farmer's Diary: "Learning From Movies."

I HAVE been much interested in a piece entitled "Going to School with the Movies," in January issue of American Mercury. Written by Hubert Kenny, this article questions why films are not oftener used in public schools.

Edison first showed his invention in public in 1881. In 1924 he remarked that the money end of the movies had never hit him the hardest—rather it was the educational possibilities that he thought he could see.

Scientific studies bore out Edison's conjecture. Dr. Philip J. Rulon of Harvard found that ninth grade pupils taught with aid of films learned and remembered 38 per cent more than those taught in the usual way . . . and showed added powers of reasoning. Movies made them think, and they loved it—yet more than four fifths of our schools still lack the projectors necessary to visual education.

Studies demonstrate that students read more rather than less, when interest in a subject is heightened by an educational film. Prof. Hogben, of University of London, points out that the film can explain many things which many people can now understand at all, by reading about them. For example instruction in surgery, obstetrics, thermodynamics.

In the surgery film every medical student can see the operation from a good vantage point—a physical impossibility when five, ten, or more students watch an actual operation. To, the film can be selected to demonstrate a typical case, or a difficult one—can be gone over as many times as seems advisable for thorough understanding . . . something obviously impossible otherwise.

Or take study of glaciers. A child whose whole knowledge of ice is limited to ice cubes from his mother's refrigerator may get a clear conception of how the Great Lakes were gouged out by glaciers, through a ten-minute movie.

Some subjects are not well adapted to the movie technique. A motion picture of a Bunsen burner, say, would not be half as effective as the real thing. And good teachers, to arouse enthusiasms and lead discussions, are always the most important part of any education. But educators often take the attitude, "What was good enough for us is good enough for our children;" or school boards insist that other items have priority over the film, regardless of merit; and some educators refuse to learn how to use the films properly.

Yet every aviator, every GI, got part of his basic training in record time through the movies—and for thirteen years it has been proved beyond all doubt to be one of the most effective teaching methods ever discovered. Why aren't we using it?

24.1 BILLIONS PAID FOR FARM PRODUCTS IN '46

End of Price Control Helped Make Record High.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— American farmers got a record high total of $24,100,000,000 for their products last year, the agriculture department disclosed yesterday.

To do it they outproduced any other year in history. Higher prices, after the OPA controls were ended in the final months of the year, helped make the new record.

Agriculture experts estimated the 1946 farm cash receipts for marketings were 16 per cent above 1945, the previous record year.

The department announced, at the same time, final 1947 crop goals, slightly lower than those set last September but still above last years. The department's acreage goal now is 356,893,000 acres, as compared with 345,111,000 in 1946.

Such goals point to another record crop year in which the government may be called on to spend millions of dollars to support prices. President Truman has told congress $330,000,000 may be needed to keep farm prices up another year.

Despite the increased production goals, agriculture officials already have estimated farmers' income in 1947 may drop between 10 and 15 per cent.

Last year farmers received cash from livestock and its products amounting to the new record level of $13,400,000,000, a jump of 14 per cent from the previous year.

Receipts from general farm crops, it was estimated, rose 18 per cent to the new high level of $10,700,000,000.

Dairy products under higher prices during the last six months of 1946 took a 17 per cent upswing. Sharp increases in receipts from cotton, food grains and feed crops were credited with responsibility for the most of the crop income gain. These rises occurred chiefly in the last six months.

Hearing Today for Runaway Ashland Boy Found In Store

ASHLAND—Hearing was to be held today for a 13-year-old boy, former resident of the Ashland county children's home, who was apprehended late Thursday after a two-day search for the youth who disappeared from his foster home here. The boy was found wandering through a local store.

He was one of three youths who confessed last fall to setting fire to the barn at the children's home in retaliation for punishment for alleged misbehavior. He and one of the other two spent three months at the juvenile research bureau in Columbus after a storm of protest by local citizens caused the probate court to rescind its reformatory sentence against the two. The third boy was returned to the county home.

The boy was returned to Ashland this week with a favorable report by the bureau and placed in a private home of an Ashlander who had volunteered to care for the boy at the time of the city-wide protest.

The youth was reported missing at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday. Later it was discovered he had returned to his foster home long enough to pick up a pair of his overshoes.

Ganyard expects to return to Mansfield with additional information on spacing arrangements and other requirements in setting up the show here.

Included in the 260 lineal feet of panels and other exhibits prepared at Ohio State university are labor and time saving devices and ideas touching upon practically every branch of rural living.

The University and the Extension Service have recognized that the ingenuity of the American farmer in originating ideas and plans and then fashioning tools and quipment to meet his needs, has been largely responsible for the enormous production of agriculture products attained during the war, Ganyard said.

With this in mind, farmers and farm women all along the route of the tour are being invited to bring out their ideas, plans or devices which they developed to save time or labor and to exhibit them along with the rest of the show.

Farmers who have any such ideas or know of neighbors who have should notify the county agent's office at the earliest date, Ganyard said.

Federation Hears Discussion Of Women's Role In World

ONE of the most stimulating and successful of the lectures sponsored by the Mansfield Federation of Women in past seasons was given yesterday morning by Mrs. Welthy Honsinger Fisher at the Ohio theater.

Drawing from her vast fund of information gathered during a lifetime of traveling on the five continents, Mrs. Fisher spoke with brilliance to which she added a great deal of personal charm.

Speaking on her topic "World Neighbors Everywhere," she stated that the power of women in all countries is one of the greatest, although unexpressed, forces. In general, women are a force power in the home, through supervision of the education and development of children, and through the fact that they are educated and many cases control a major part of the wealth. As an example she gave the matriarchal powers of women in India and China.

"It is difficult to explain the lack of interest of American women in world and national affairs to women of the east" she said, noting that when asked by a group of women in the Indian congress what women in America talk about when they gather together, she could give no satisfactory answer.

"American women," she said, "are losing opportunities by not taking advantage of their economic, and educational advantages.

"Through more information on world affairs and an intelligent interest women can lead the world toward true world cooperation," she stated. "The rebirth of neighborly attitudes and cooperation will come when women welcome all kinds of experiences."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. George Searle, Federation president.

Speaking for Myself — (About Hollywood!)—This week's horror movie note has nothing to do with Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Peter Lorre, or any of their gentle terrifying brethren. It's simply the news from the Coast that Hollywood intellectuals are going all out for existentialism, the weird new French philosophy which makes surrealism seem like McGuffey's Reader stuff. A little bird (a vulture, of course—what else?) tells me that the brain boys of the cinema capital are all excited about the philosophy, attending lectures like crazy (I use the word "crazy" advisedly) and holding feverish conferences about making films promoting existentialism. Say it isn't so, fellows. Some of those B pictures are ghastly enough without the addition of that clammy French touch.

* * *

There used to be a time when "independent producer" was a term of abuse in Hollywood—a phrase delivered with killing scorn and a withering curl of the lip. It referred, in years of yore, to upstarts who rounded up a few thousand dollars, a batch of cardboard background scenes and a semi-cardboard cowboy actor, and turned out a horse opera every fortnight. Well, Hollywood still has plenty of such sage-scented worthies, but they're in classy company now. With practically half the Triple A actors and actresses in the screen colony sticking their beautiful profiles into the business end of the movies, the "independent producer" has become a persona very grata in Hollywood. I'm not too clear as to the exact reasons why Ginger Rogers, Bing Crosby, Joan Bennett, James Cagney, Hedy Lamarr and their expensive ilk are all going in for independent productions. Cynics tell me it has something to do with dat ol' debbil income tax, but I refuse to credit such a sordid theory. My own belief—probably wrong, but romantic—is that actors are becoming producers because it's suddenly a glamorous field.

* * *

Producers no longer are considered stodgy or shadowy figures who sit behind Norman Bel Geddes desks and scan production charts. They're represented in the newspapers and fan magazines and success periodicals as dashing personalities, full of color and excitement and simply fascinating copy for the columnists. Darryl Zanuck's croquet exploits are followed by the reading public with breathless interests, also his polo playing prowess, and Howard Hughes, the lean rebel, gets more space in the gazettes than his frozen (sic) asset, Jane Russell. David O. Selznick's every utterance is a poem for the Hollywood Reporter, Sam Goldwyn has become a king of anecdots, and J Arthur Rank, the comparatively recent British film magnate, has lend-leased so much American newsprint there's hardly room for anything else. If this state of affairs continues, with producers out-glamouring stars and productions, it won't be long before no paper will print a picture of Rita Hayworth unless Harry Cohn is in the foreground.

* * *

Now and then an editorialist or beauty writer drops the phrase "old fashioned girl," and praises her or yearns for her, but in Hollywood no one is old enough to remember an old fashioned girl who wasn't much more torrid, much more lurid, far more wicked than the new-fashioned girls of the current screen fare. Take Nita Naldi, Mae West, Theda Bara and Clara Bow. They're old-fashioned to stars like June Haver, June Allyson, Dorothy McGuire and Ingrid Bergman, but don't they make the new-fashioned girls seem old-fashioned?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, January 18.

THE presage is for a day of the exalted, romantic, adventurous and felicitous, in which the emotions, creative talents, personal magnetism and charm, with all pertaining to beauty, culture, inner urges and ideals, coming to the front for the advancement and realization of cherished h o p e s. And while such benign combinations of powers and faculties may be applied to workaday objectives, yet a tendency to overact, with reckless, tumultuous and emotional impulses, may prove a defeating factor. Avert regrets through abrupt moves or wayward subtle urges.

Those whose birthday it is have exceptional prospect of a peculiarly happy, progressive and constructive year, inspired by far vision and keen insight into deep currents of idealism and creative urge — probably intuitive or illuminated ideas or aspirations. The purely personal q u a l i t i e s, with beauty, charm, magnetism and other subtle or hidden factors, have sway over even commonplace and practical prospects. But any tendency to overdo in these spiritual or emotional impulses may be instrumental in bringing on strange defeats, frustrations, unique experiences, and unpredictable upsets. Tumult, erratic acts, and emotionalism exact severe penalties.

A child born on this day may possess many exceptional talents, graces, charms and powers. Erratic or turbulent impulses may defeat its highest ideals.

THE INTERFERENCE

Blacky the Crow and Mrs. Blacky chuckled gleefully as from the top of a tall tree they watched two Dogs running about in a nearby field, sniffing, snuffing and whining impatiently. They were trying to find the fresh scent of Reddy Fox so as to follow him, but all they could find was scent they had already followed and that led them nowhere but around and around that field. It was as if Reddy had run around that field and then vanished into thin air, which of course he hadn't.

Those Dogs knew he hadn't. They were smart Dogs, the kind called Fox Hounds, and had been trained to hunt Foxes and no one else. To them trying to catch up with a Fox was a sort of game, an exciting game in which they matched their wonderful noses against the sharp wits and swift feet of the one they chased. So now they knew that Reddy Fox had fooled them; that somehow, somewhere, he had broken his trail by a trick that was new to them. This made them all the more eager to find that trail again. They were not the kind to give up easily.: So they sniffed and they sniffed in the grass along the Old Stone Wall at one end of the field, along the fence one side. They even climbed over the stone wall opposite and sniffed and snuffed about on the other side of it. They circled about. They whined with disappointment and impatience, but they didn't let impatience make them less thorough in their search for the lost trail.

The more those Dogs whined the more Blacky and Mrs. Blacky chuckled. They knew where Reddy was. They had watched him circle that field before the Dogs were where they could see him, make a long jump over his own trail unto the stone wall near its beginning and finally another long leap to the ground on the other side, then trot away. Once he stopped to look back and grinned as he listened to the impatient whines of the Dogs; then he went on, not hurrying. Perhaps he was a little pleased with himself for having so fooled those Dogs.

Fresh scent is easily followed by such wonderful noses as Fox Hounds have, but the longer it lies the fainter it becomes until there is none. From the point where Reddy had left the ground in his long jump to the stone wall to the point where he landed on the ground again when he jumped from the wall there was no scent excepting on the flat stone of the wall where he had landed, and stone does not carry scent well or hold it long.

"Smart!" said Blacky admiringly.

"Smart," agreed Mrs. Blacky. "And I thought he was crazy!"

Blacky chuckled. "Crazy like a Fox is a good way to be," said he. He stopped chuckling. A boy had slipped through the bars into that field and was whistling and calling to the Dogs. They wagged their tails, for he was some one they knew, but kept on sniffing and snuffing. He spoke to them sharply. He coaxed them. At last reluctantly they followed him. He led them back up the field and out into the road.

Blacky watched suspiciously. "I don't like it," he muttered.

"What is it you don't like?" asked Mrs. Blacky.

"I think that fellow is interfering, and that isn't fair to Reddy Fox," replied Blacky.

The boy led the Dogs into a field on the other side of the road. There he urged them to "go find him." The Dogs started to circle. Almost at once one of them yelped sharply, excitedly. The other joined him. A moment later they were off. "Fox! Fox! Fox! Wow-ow-ow! Fox! Fox!" they bayed. The boy grinned as he listened. As he had come along the road he had seen Reddy crossing that field.

"I thought as much," said Blacky. Spreading his black wings, he flew off in the direction Reddy had taken. Perhaps he intended to warn Reddy. There was no need to. Reddy heard those eager, excited voices far behind him and knew that his smart trick had failed after all and wondered why. Perhaps Blacky would tell him of the interference. The best plans in the world fail when there is interference.

"People should mind their own business," muttered Blacky as he flew.

EPWORTH COUPLE FETED BY FRIENDS

EPWORTH — Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Light were surprised at their home here Tuesday by 50 friends and neighbors on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

Gifts were presented to the couple and a color scheme of yellow and white was carried out when refreshments were served. An arrangement of yellow roses and chrysanthemums, the gift of the Franklin Art club of which Mrs. Light is a member, centered the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Light were married Jan. 14, 1897, in the United Brethren Church in Ashland. They have lived in Epworth for 40 years and have many friends in this vicinity.

Eggs are equally digestible, more or less, whether they are hard-cooked, soft-cooked, or raw. What makes the difference in the digestibility, is even, slow heating.

To remove tarnish from brass and copper utensils, rub them with a mixture of equal parts of flour, salt and vinegar.

C. OF C. JOINS DRIVE AGAINST PORTAL CLAIMS

Organization Backs Industry In Request for Relief

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The U. S. Chamber of Commerce asked congress today for "prompt relief" from portal-to-portal pay suits which it said threaten confiscation of many American businesses.

Thomas W. Howard, manager of the Chamber's manufacture department, told a senate judiciary subcommittee that congress may well consider "liabilities" springing from legal decisions other than that in the portal case.

In this, Howard joined the National Association of Manufacturers which warned that other interpretations of the wage-hour law may be more costly to industry than the billions in portal claims.

Howard, listed ahead of AFL and CIO witnesses, explained that the Chamber is now polling its one million businessman-members on a policy declaration calling for specific changes in the fair labor standards act. He said that declaration carries these major recommendations:

1. Elimination from fair labor standards act coverage operations that are not actually in interstate commerce. Howard said the administration of the law has gone "far afield."

2. A definition of "compensable working time" which would recognize prevailing custom, practice or actual agreement. This would settle whether time spent walking to or preparing for the day's work was to be paid for at regular or overtime rates.

3. Discretion for the courts to decide whether an employer has acted in "good faith" and is entitled to having any damages mitigated.

4. Legalize compromise settlements in bona fide disputes under the act. The Supreme Court has held that overtime wage and double-damage claims cannot legally be compromised by employer and worker.

Howard, like other business and industry leaders who have testified, also recommended a statute of limitations covering claims arising under the labor standards act.

The percentage of American families which have five children has been approximately halved since 1920.

Liquor Sales Here Normal; Drop's Slight

Mansfield, noted for its "normalcy" in periods of depression, is living up to that reputation during a recent "wet depression" reported throughout the state.

While other Ohio cities have reported a "terrific slump" in liquor sales since Christmas and New year celebrations, Mansfield's retail sales were termed "normal" by William Thull, retail store manager here.

"We have no records of last year's sales," Thull said, "but based on experience I would say that our sales are post-holiday normal. There is always a peak during the holidays and a slight slump afterward, but it is no more than usual at this store."

Wholesale stocks in Mansfield have declined since the holidays, L G Wervey, store manager, said. "Sales have dropped about 25 per cent since the holidays," he said. "Christmas and New Year's sales in 1946 were not as heavy as in previous years."

Stock variety is slowly improving, he said. Almost anything in the way of blended whisky is available and new brands are anticipated in about six months. Straight whiskys continue to be scarce.

Emphasis On Quips

HOWARD CUSHMAN says they tell it about the sports copy desk at the Times. A racing story came in about a horse named Rhododendron, badly pied in transmission. The deskman (handling it) got into an argument about where the "h" should be. "Oh, I'll look it up!" he said.

"Where you gonna look it up?" the head of the desk inquired.

"In the dictionary, of course!"

"You dope!" bellowed the chief. "They don't have race horses' names in the dictionary!"

A group were groaning about "Axis Sally" (who did broadcasting for Hitler) being allowed back in the U. S.

"She'll probably get a radio contract," growled Hal Horton, "and be advertised as the gal who introduced the all-night disc-jockey program to GI's."

Jackie Elinson doubts if Gen. Eisenhower would run for president. "I don't think," he adds, "Ike wants to be demoted."

The current quip-thefting fad recalls Deems Taylor's crack about song-scribblers who lifted classic melodies.

"If you're famous enough, you can say 'inspired by' instead of 'swiped from'!"

Several comedians were "frying" last night and a well-known punk was on the pan. Jackie Miles stopped the whole thing with this wise comment: "Knockin' is not a good man's racket. When you knock a louse you're doin' him some good. Let's forget the heel."

One of our pet Movieville quips concerns the actress who filled out a studio questionnaire. In the place marked: "Education" she wrote: "I was educated by a private tooter."

A copy desk veteran was giggling at a cub reporter, just bawled out by the city editor.

"What's so funny?" asked the cub. "Isn't that the way he used to yell at you?"

"No," smiled the ex-biggie. "That's the way I used to yell at him!"

Another cub asked editor Paul Sann: "Do drama editors get more money than city editors?"

"No," was the reply, "but they get more sleep."

In Mrs. Piozzi's theatrical memoirs she tells of an actor named Foote, who was a big hammo. He got on a Dublin manager's nerves. The manager kicked the ham in his finale. Later, discussing the incident, Samuel Johnson observed: "At any rate, he is rising in the world. When he was in London no one thought it worth while to kick him."

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Sport Needs Master

WASHINGTON—A short time after the death of Judge K. M. Landis, the baseball industry was invited to consider Elmer Irey as his successor. The owners chose, instead, Happy Chandler, of Kentucky, a politician and, by the progress of that occupation, a senator. He was not a good senator and the qualities which recommended him to his new employers were his defects, not his virtues. They wanted a man less narrow-minded than the old judge had been and an optimist who would look for a silver lining in a sewer.

Mr. Irey was coordinator of the intelligence services of the treasury. That means he was general manager of the secret service, the narcotics and alcohol tax units and several other groups of investigators and fly cops. He has retired.

In his career with the government, Mr. Irey had general charge of the investigations which turned up the evidence against the Pendergast gang in Kansas City of which President Truman is a proud alumnus in affectionate defiance of our perfunctory morals; against the Huey Long gang and Al Capone. His staff also prepared the income tax case against Joe Schenck, of Hollywood, who loaned $50,000 to Jimmy Roosevelt, the soaring eaglet of the New Deal, fortuitous anticipation of a presidential pardon which washed him clean of taint, secretly, in the fall of 1945.

* * *

THIS LONG experience necessarily made Mr. Irey familiar, as few other men are, with the personal relationships and the interlocking interests of the criminal underworld of New York, the Miamis and Hollywood and the nightclub and radio departments of the mutually nasty amusement, gambling and narcotic industries.

Now, professional—and, in some phases, amateur, as it were—sports are invaded by the same vermin who infest our other enjoyments.

Being apart from politics and objective by temperament, Mr. Irey would have come to the job of baseball commissioner free of the old associations and the debts of political gratitude which might handicap a man with Happy Chandler's history.

The proprietors of the major league teams are the trustees of a curious industry which is carelessly regarded as the national game of the great republic. They have lowered the standards that Judge Landis maintained. Landis was arbitrary and he invited damage suits by his decrees of banishment against individual rascals. He also excluded, on general, but beautiful, principles, all race-track men and race-track money from the ownership ot major league teams or firms.

This verboten was abandoned soon after his death.

Landis kept the players on warning to shun gangsters and keep out of underworld hangouts of politicians, crooked Hollywood movie and radio dignitaries, and bookmakers. That social demarcation has been obliterated, the most conspicuous common resort in New York today of players, gamblers, facemakers, panoplied sound-effects, and the lower parasites who feed off their boots, is a saloon which is mentioned so often in print and on the air as to seem to be the capitol of baseball. For that matter, if baseball has a capitol today, it is.

Mr. Irey is no longer a candidate for the job, if he ever was a candidate. I mention him in this connection only to emphasize the need of an uncompromising attitude in the industry toward the underworld and of a man on top who knows crooks in all guises and how they operate and cooperate.

FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

Now Come New Claims

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Portal-to-portal pay suits are small-time stuff. I intend to file at once a dusk-to-dawn suit. Then I'm going to sock the boss with an ear-to-ear suit. If he has any money left I'll sue him next for a tooth-to-gullet pay. Boy!

My lawyer, Raymond S. Smethurst, who also represents the National Association of Manufacturers, says I can't lose. Not the way the law is drawn now, I can't.

The point, as he explained to the U. S. senate, is that a fellow has to get some sleep if he's to do his work. Well then shouldn't he be paid for this sleeping?

Certainly. Lawyer Smethurst pointed out, in fact, that the federal district court for northern Illinois held on last May 10 that a fireman asleep and off duty had to be paid for every snore because he might have been awakened and called to work.

That's my precedent. Last night I slept conscientiously for nine hours, with time out for getting one drink of water. Either I get paid for all this pillow pounding, or tonight I don't go to bed at all. I'll stay up and howl; I'll drink champagne from Lillian Russell's slipper and otherwise arrange to be a bleary-eyed wretch when I show up for work in the morning. Why should a fellow sleep unless he's paid for it?

* * *

MY EAR-TO-EAR suit involves all the unhappy hours I have spent shaving. There is no reason, according to my attorney, why I shouldn't sue for time consumed, effort made, and blood spilled.

The idea here is obvious. Razor'd never touch my chin, unless the boss expected me to look neat and clean. If he wants me pretty, then he pays for it. Fifteen minutes a day, six days a week, for 20 years. I've been scraping off my whiskers.

I have not shaved on Sundays, except when forced to by a lady who says she never promised to love, honor and obey any bramble-bush, and I therefore have deducted the seventh day from my bill.

There is then the little matter of eating. This takes time. Only reason I eat is to keep my strength so I can do my work. I have been conscientious about this, too, using my valuable time to consume three squares a day, plus a snack from the refrigerator nightly just before hitting (in the interest of my job) the hay. Of course I intend to sue.

Lawyer Smethurst, an intense-looking young man in a gray suit and maroon necktie, filed a 40-page statement, explaining these and other matters, with a subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee. He said he would not read it. If he had, he could have sued the Association of Manufacturers, and 27 affiliated organizations, for page-to-page reading pay.

BACKWARD RUN COSTS DRIVER $75 AND COSTS

Admits Charge of Failing To Stop After Mishap.

Driving backwards away from an accident today cost Ralph E. Dickson, 105 North Franklin avenue, $75 and costs.

Dickson pleaded guilty in municipal court to a charge of failing to stop after an accident and was fined $125 and costs, with $50 suspended on payment of damage to the other vehicle involved in an accident yesterday.

State patrolmen said Dickson's auto collided last night with a car driven by Dwight E. Thompson, of Bucyrus, on U. S. Route 30-N. After the accident, patrolmen said, Dickson backed up 1,000 feet until the truck which he was driving slid into a ditch, where patrolmen found him a few minutes later.

In addition to the fine, Dickson's right to drive was revoked for six months.

Case Continued.

The case of John Calhoun, 203 East Third street, charged with being a fugitive from justice in connection with a $22.50 forged check cashed in Grand Rapids, Mich., was continued in municipal court until Next Tuesday.

Francesca B. Goodelle, of Jamestown, N. Y., forfeited $25 bond when he failed to appear in court on a charge of speeding. Charles R. Caton, 150 West Third street, was fined $5 and costs on a charge of operating a vehicle with improper lights.

David C. Cooper, 88 East Arch street, and George G. Kitrenas, 53 Glenwood boulevard, both charged with speeding, were summoned to appear in traffic court next Wednesday. On a similar charge, Dolan E. Evel, Mansfield, R. D. 4, was to appear in municipal court Feb. 5.

Amvets to Train Rifle Squad For Military Services Here

A rifle squad will be trained by Amvets for use in military services, it was announced at a meeting of the Robert Spreng post last night. Robert Kaser, treasurer of the post, will have charge of training the squad with rifles made available by the war department.

Robert E. Rogers, post commander, said the squad would be available for all military funerals in line with a war department announcement that bodies of all soldiers buried overseas would be returned to this country.

The post in a resolution commended the Friendly House program and voted $25 toward the building fund. Don Cram, chairman of the welfare committee, reported that 450 decks of playing cards had been collected and distributed to Ohio's veteran hospitals.

Stanley Fox, Amvet representative on the Richland county Veterans council, announced that the council had asked the Amvets to express their view on the proposed plan to move the old fairgrounds. The question was referred to a committee.

A request was read from the county commissioners that Amvets view the trailer on display near the courthouse today. The trailer is one of a group proposed by the commissioners as part of a future veterans housing project.

It was reported that one donor from the post's blood bank had been asked to donate blood at the hospital.

William Bechtler, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced that a dance would be held at Grotto Hall on Feb. 28, for all veterans, their wives and friends. Paul Bergerner's orchestra will play.

The Amvets' next meeting will be Sunday, Jan. 26, at 2 p. m. in the Memorial building.

CITY OFFICIALS VIEW PROJECT

City officials tomorrow will make an on-the-spot investigation of a proposed flood control project for the Wayne-Orange streets area, Councilman Clifford Knarr said today.

Last night councilmen met with engineers and representatives of the Tappan Stove company and Westinghouse Electric corporation to study plans for the project.

The plan was advanced by the two companies as a means of protecting their enameling plants, repeatedly threatened by flood waters during heavy rains.

Company officials have declared that storm waters could cause the furnaces to explode. Such explosions they said, could cause widespread damage and possibly put the two plants out of operation for some time.

Knarr said that city officials will examine the proposed route of a heavy-luty storm sewer recommended by the two companies.

They will also examine flood control measures already taken by the two companies and how the plan, which also includes the elevating of one street, would protect the furnaces.

ARMY DELAYS ANNOUNCEMENT ON DRAFT CALL

Recruiting Not High Enough To Put Military Needs on All-Volunteer Basis.

WASHINGTON — (INS)— Maj. Gen. St. Clair Streett, the army's new recruiting chief, disclosed today that the number of volunteers has picked up 30 per cent since the first of this year.

Streett said that previously enlistments had been running from between four to five thousand a week. The increase is expected to bring total enlistments for this month to 25,000.

Between thirty-five and forty thousand enlistments are needed monthly, however, to place the army on an all-volunteer basis. Set strength for July 1 is one million, seventy thousand officers and men.

It is still undecided whether a draft call will be issued for February and March or whether the army wil have to seek extension of selective service past its March 31 expiration date to meet the goal, matters on which Streett refused to comment.

Streett said that the army's struggle for sufficient enlistments would be "immeasurably aided if the American people would join with the army in dignifying the profession."

He declared that "if mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts would interest themselves in a career for their men in the army we'd have the most potent recruiting organization in the world."

2 Obstacles In Way.

The general said that in obtaining enlistments the army has to battle two obstacles:

"The people feel that the war is over; the pressure is off in the United States; and secondly, American youth while adventurous is not particularly anxious to leave the United States."

Streett, in regard to the latter, explained:

"One of the most important phases of our present recruiting program is to interest young men in the opportunities for direct enlistments into the six famous fighting divisions located in Japan and Korea."

The recruiting chief observed that activities carried out by the army run the gamut of professions and industries of the United States.

He maintained that the only profession comparable to the military was the medical. He added in this regard that not only does a soldier save lives "but he stands as a watchman of this nation's security."

COUNTY TO BUY 5 HEAVY TRUCKS

County Engineer Walter E. Rusk, with the approval of the county commissioners, will purchase five new heavy trucks to replace six light vehicles in the county road department, it was announced today.

To cost $17,420, the new vehicles will replace six 1936, 1937 and 1938 models which when sold are expected to bring trade-in values totaling $3,400, Rusk said.

A five-ton White truck will be purchased at a cost of $4,420 from Ingram and Martin; two Internationals, costing $6,200 will be bought from G. L. Rogers; and two Macks, costing $6,800; will be obtained from the Myers Farm Supply company.

Vets Like Movie; DAV Plans More

Mansfield Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans are going to do it again.

Last night's showing of the film "True Glory" proved so popular, it had to be shown twice to accommodate the more than 100 persons who jammed the meeting room.

As a result, a member said today, the DAV plans to schedule pictures at regular intervals.

The films are from the library of the Mansfield army recruiting station. M/Sgt. Authony Desalvo, station commander, presented the picture last night.

The next regular meeting of the DAV will be Sunday at 3 p. m. in the club rooms.

Marine Corps League Favors Keeping Fairgrounds Site

Resolutions to join the Joint Veterans Commission of Richland county and to donate $25 to the Friendly House were voted at last night's meeting of the Richland detachment, Marine Corps league.

The League also went on record as favoring the retention of the fairgrounds in the present site and the purchase of nearby land to provide the required space.

League members voted unanimously to send delegates to the commission after hearing M. A. Fulkerson, the commission president, explain the aims and purposes of the organization.

Fulkerson explained that the commission was composed of delegates from each of the veteran's organizations. Its purpose was to serve as a unifying body on questions of major importance to veterans and veterans' organizations in the county.

Pointing out that there were some 15 veterans organizations in Mansfield alone, Fulkerson said the strength that comes through unity could be found in the commission. The commission also guards against any one organization, regardless of its strength, from "cornering power" as each has two representatives who can vote, Fulkerson said.

Veterans' organizations at present represented on the commission are American Legion, Posts 16 and 72, Amvets, AVC, DAV, 37th Division, Battery D, 140th Field Artillery association, VFW and the Marine Corps league. Shelby Legion and VFW posts are also represented, Fulkerson said.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Walter L. Johns, Central Press: "President Truman has agreed to throw out the first ball when the Senators and Yankees open the baseball season in Washington April 14. The president, a lefthander may not be the ace of the Capitol Hill corps but since he is a southpaw he should get the strong support of Senator Claghorn."

Charlie Trippi wants to play both baseball and football but the odds are very definitely against his being a star in both. . . . In fact if he does make the major league baseball grade he will be a sports oddity. . . . There's only one man in the big time now who was an All America in college football and that is Sam Chapman, the 1937 California fullback. . . . The mighty Jim Thorpe, perhaps the greatest all-around athlete that America has produced, could do everything well in every sport—except his curves dished up by big league tossers. . . . You can't blame Trippi for trying as there is plenty of room up there beside Chapman.

John Fike, "Y" physical director, has organized evening business men's volleyball classes. . . . They are held each Monday, Wednesday and Friday at the YMCA starting at 5 p. m. . . . Fike needs a few more contestants to fill out the classes. . . . Mansfield Motorcycle has been granted a sanction for the state championship TT race to be held on the speedway eight miles west of Mansfield, Sept. 28, 1947. . . . Lowell Williams, referee; Don Christman, clerk of course and Richard Simms, assistant will be in charge.

TYGER CAGERS GOING AFTER THIRD IN ROW

Mansfield Sophs Meet Columbian Reserves.

Mansfield Senior high Bengal basketeers take to the court tonight in Tiffin as distinct favorites over a hapless Tiffin Columbian cage aggregation.

It will mark the first time this season that the Tygers will be the out and out favorites to bring home a decisive victory. Coach Vern Hoffman's men of basketball have defeated two favored opponents in the last seven days and expect no trouble in making Columbian victim No. 8.

Mansfield waltzed to a 44 to 34 victory over a skyscraper New Philadelphia combine last Friday and then upset a strong Springfield outfit, 33 to 29. Tuesday in the Tyger lair. Hoffman's proteges have dropped only four contests.

The Bengals romped over Tiffin, 41 to 27, last year with Ollie Cline, Chuck Sisco and Ralph Majors, of this year's team, all seeing action. Other starters tonight will be freeshooting Nick Gagich and Tommy Bloor, team's leading scorer.

Tiffin has won only one of six games this season. The Columbian cagers topped Willard in their opener, 21 to 18, and then fell before Bucyrus, Findlay, Fremont Ross, Bowling Green and Fostoria. Tiffin has scored only 132 points in the six contests.

Guard Bonford Talbert is the lone returning letterman on the Tiffin team. However, starters Glenn Bare and Roger Hulthen subbed against the Bengals in 1945-46. Bare, 6-2, leads the Columbian scorers with 36 points.

Forwards Robert Wall and Cliff Stahl complete the starting five.

The sophomores will also make the trip tonight and are scheduled to meet the Columbian reserves in the prelim at 7 p. m.

The squad will make the trip in private cars, leaving from Senior high at 4:45 p. m.

Mangrum's 64 Tops Golfers In 1st Round

RICHMOND, Calif.—(AP) Spurred by a record-equalling seven-under-par 64 posted by U. S. Open Golf Champion Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, the nation's leading golfers teed off today in the second round of the $10,000 Richmond 72-hole open golf tournament after one of the greatest scoring splurges of modern tournament play.

Forty-eight of the 152 entrants bettered par 71 over the 6,209 yard Richmond course.

Despite his scoring splurge, which equalled the course competitive record set two years ago by Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Mangrum at the end of the first round was only one stroke ahead of William Fritz, Colma, Cal., professional.

Mangrum carded a 34-30 for his 64 while Fritz turned in a 32-33 for 65.

Bunched on the heels of the leaders were Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., Toney Penna of Cincinnati and George Schoux, formerly of New York, who now has returned to San Bruno, Cal. All had identical cards of 33-33—66.

Seven other contestants, including the low amateur of the opening round, John Barnum of Chicago, Pat Makovich, Richmond Country club professional; Ed Oliver of Wilmington, Del., and Jimmie Demaret of Houston, Tex., followed at 67.

Altogether, 15 amateurs were among the 109 golfers who survived the first round cut, in which all posting cards of more than 75 were eliminated.

Capital Takes Another Step In Win Streak

Capital university, the only Ohio college with an unbeaten basketball team, won 67 to 53 at Wilmington last night.

The Ohio conference triumph strengthened Capital's hold on the lead in the loop where the Lutherans have copped six of their seven victories this campaign.

The tall Capital team controlled the backboard rebounds and led all the way against Wilmington's Quakers. Guard Jim Carlisle's 16 points for the winners were bettered by Norman Ashworth, Wilmington forward, who netted nine field goals.

In other Ohio conference action Findlay topped Ashland 65 to 50 at Ashland, and Otterbein won a home game from Denison 60 to 38. Forward Vince Barr of Ashland continued his high-scoring pace with 20 points against 18 for Findlay's Wayne Shively, while Clyde Helsinger, Otterbein forward, took individual scoring honors in the contest at Westerville with 18 points.

Using five Indiana players in its starting lineup against visiting Valparaiso, Ind., Crusaders, Toledo won 69 to 45. Toledo led 34 to 14 at the half. Center Len Rhodes' 20 points for the winners topped individual scoring.

Nominated for president were Clifford R. Glazier of Marietta; Harry Mehock, Mansfield; Pat Richert, Cincinnati Hughes; Kenneth Sampson, Bellevue; Larry Snyder, Ohio State University; and Charles M. Wright, Canton McKinley.

Among the vice presidential nominees were James L. Rogers of Tuscarawas and Fred M. Thomas of Martins Ferry, opposing each other in the eastern district.

Ten were nominated to fill six positions on the relays advisory board. Among them were Geoge Gauthier of Ohio Wesleyan and Dwight S. Salzman of Greenville high school.

Barker was renominated as secretary-treasurer, without opposition.

National League Drafts Agreements

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— The National Professional Football league today was drafting working agreements with two more minor pro loops.

Commissioner Bert Bell said the pacts include player exchanges, recognition of territorial rights and the authority of the NFL commissioner. He revealed the two leagues are the Pennsylvania Professional league and a proposed New England circuit.

National Pro Grid Loop Snatches Charley Trippi

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK—(AP)—The National Football league was chortling today over the double-barreled joke it handed the All-America conference when it snatched Charley Trippi and Clyde LaForce from under the noses of its rivals.

Trippi, All-America halfback from Georgia who apparently was all set to lug the leather for the All-America Yankees or New York next fall, reversed the field yesterday and went to Chicago for a tete-a-tete with Charley Bidwill, wealthy owner of the National league's Chicago Cardinals.

And the dark, curly-haired product of Pittston, Pa., is expected to contract with Bidwill today or tomorrow to play with the Cardinals the next four years for a total of slightly less than $100,000.

LaForce, brilliant Tulsa quarterback and star of the recent East-West Shrine benefit game at San Francisco, signed a two-year contract to play with the Detroit Lions of the National league in preference to several bids from the All-America conference, including one from the San Francisco Forty-Niners.

It was believed the contract called for not less than $10,000 a year.

The loss of Trippi is an especially bitter pill for the infant loop to swallow. So confident were the Yankees of closing the deal yesterday that they called a press conference for noon and invited the photographers.

When Trippi visited Yankee officials to tell them he had rejected their bid, Dan Topping, president of the football Yankees, seemed the most surprised man in the world.

Trippi's document with Chicago will leave him free to deal for his baseball services. And Bidwill said he would recommend to Charley that he accept an offer to hook up with the Chicago Cubs, passing up bids from the Boston Red Sox, Boston Braves, Philadelphia Phillies, Atlanta and Birmingham of the Southern association.

The Cubs, Bidwill disclosed, would give Trippi a $10,000 bonus to play with their Los Angeles team of the Pacific Coast league next season, and then, if he proved himself a big leaguer and went up to the Cubs the following year, would pay $20,000. Thus they would match the $30,000 cash bonus dangled by the Red Sox.

The Yankees' offer of $105,000 to Trippi to play five years of football and two years of baseball represented a larger cash deal than Bidwill had offered, but Trippi would not agree to the clause stipulating that after two years he would have to choose between the sports, dropping one or the other.

Three Big Nine Games Booked

CHICAGO —(AP)— Three Big Nine basketball games are on tomorrow night's program featuring Purdue's attempt to bowl over Michigan's tightly-woven defensive unit which has held opponents to an average 40 points a game.

The Wolverines, who whipped Northwestern twice but lost to Minnesota 48-37, are expected to be bolstered by the return of Gerrit Wierda, high scoring freshman forward, who has missed the last two games because of a sprained ankle.

In other games tomorrow night, Indiana will be after its third victory in four starts by entertaining Iowa and Northwestern will be at Ohio State.

Northwestern, weakened by the ineligibility of two regular forwards, Bill Sticklen and Joe Hughes, has lost three straight conference games. The Buckeyes, after surprising Minnesota, 43-31, have lost three in a row, to Indiana, Iowa and Illinois.

Indians Give Tribal Dances

Warriors from the Sioux, Cheyenne and Crow tribes make up the Oklahoma Indian cage squad, which faces the colored All American Whiz Kids of Memphis, Tenn., in the second pro cage contest scheduled for Mansfield Senior high Monday night.

The Indians, playing out of the Stillwater (Oklahoma) Reservation are making their first trip east. The Braves have made a big hit, not only on the court, but with their side show as well.

Before the game and at half time the Indians give spectators some idea of how they live back home. Indian war dances, songs, smoking the pipe of peace, beating the Tom Toms, and other features are presented, with the Indians attired in native regalia, including head feathers and war paint.

Trippi Gets Peanuts, Says Gallopin' Ghost

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO—(AP)—It was Red Grange on the telephone.

"So this Charley Trippi thinks he's getting the most money in pro football history, eh?" boomed the old Gallopin' Ghost of Illinois. "Why, that $100,000 contract with the (Chicago) Cardinals is peanuts—absolutely peanuts."

But, Red, whatcha mean "peanuts"—that they and $100,000 contracts grow on trees, or bushes or somethin'?"

"I mean that $100,000 over a four-season period that Georgia lad is going to sign for amounts to $25,000 per season. Even I can figure that. And I used to get $25,000 or more for one game. That's what I mean by peanuts."

Guess Trippi was a little overenthusiastic yesterday, Red. He said in New York that when he signs with Charley Bidwill and the Cardinals it will be for "the biggest salary in the history of pro football—even more than Red Grange got."

"Again, I say peanuts when he compares what he's going to get with what I got," continued Ol' 77. "It would take a couple of hours to figure out what I made playing football from 1925 to 1934 and even then the total would just be an estimate. I wasn't getting paid a certain amount each game. I got a hunk of the gate receipts. The biggest chunk of cash I picked up in one game was $50,000 when George Halas' (Chicago) Bears and I met an all-star bunch captained by George Wilson, the 1925 All-America from Washington. The game was played in January of 1926 in Los Angeles before some 80,000 fans. And just before that I got $35,000 for a game appearance in New York.

"Trippi's $100,000 looks big—and I have to admit it's not to be sneezed at," added Grange. "But just listen to this:

During my first three months with the Bears on strictly a percentage basis—from Thanksgiving 1925 to February, 1926—my cut was more than $100,000, with a like amount going to my manager, Pyle (the late C. C. Pyle). Pyle and I split a million dollars from gate receipts from 1925 through 1927."

Men's City Bowling Tournament Opens Tomorrow

SPORTS ROUND UP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (AP) — From now on Jimmy Conzelman will have to change that speech about George Halas, "the nicest rich man I know." . . . But there's some question whether he should apply that description to Owner Charley Bidwill or player Charley Trippi. . . . At any rate, with Trippi, Biggie Goldberg, Paul Christman and Pat Harder in the backfield, the Cardinals should be more than just the team most likely to upset.

SPORTS BEFORE YOUR EYES

Staff Cassell of American university, John Lawther's main rival in teaching zone defense, gets a big laugh out of the pro basketball league outlawing the stationary zone. "It's too bad the pro coaches can't find time to set up an offense against the zone," he says. "but they wouldn't get much sympathy from football coaches who must change their offense each week to meet the opposition." . . . Still it's a move that Ted Williams likely would favor.

TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT

Baseball Historian Joe Reichler has discovered an account of the first intercollegiate baseball game, played at Pittsfield, Mass., June 1, 1859, between Williams and Amherst. . . . The contest was played with 13 men on each side and 65 runs constituted a game. This one lasted 26 "rounds"—but the account neglects to say who won.
